

Washington.—As the time approaches for President Coolidge to leave his office, he has a feeling of regret at a necessary interruption of many pleasant personal associations. At the same time he feels relieved that the end of his responsibility as president is at hand.

With Mrs. Coolidge, the chief executive is to be host at dinner to members of the cabinet and their wives on Saturday night, and will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Senator Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Barn, on Sunday evening.

MANY NEW FLAGS WILL WAVE NEXT INAUGURAL DAY

Thousands of Banners Will Be Made by Army's Manufacturing Depot

Washington—(AP)—Thousands of flags have been especially made to wave in Washington March 4 at the inauguration of Herbert Hoover. The quartermaster general has arranged with the army's manufacturing depot in Philadelphia to supply flags of every dimension ranging from the big garrison flags 20 by 38 feet to the small storm flags 5 by 9 feet.

In the same city where Betsey Ross made the first American flag, hundreds of girls are busy stitching white percale stars on a blue field and carefully laying red and white strips of bunting together. The Philadelphia depot is responsible for all the flags used by the U. S. Army, including colors and standards for regiments. The national flag is made in 13 sizes.

The making of Old Glory advanced along the same lines of economical production as other commodities in the needle industries. At one time the entire flag was fashioned by one operator. Now the work is divided into 13 operations. A different task is assigned each worker, the work passing along from one machine to another until it is completely assembled.

The material for stars is stamped out with a steel cutting die on an electric-driven stamping machine. The blue field is placed on a table, carefully smoothed out, and the proper position of the stars marked on each field, using a perforated pattern.

National colors of silk are carried by mounted troops and standards by mounted organizations. Making of the stars differs from the work on bunting flags. The stars are made of solid embroidery silk on a Swiss hand embroidery machine.

The blue silk fields are placed in frames on this machine, which turns out a stitch-like hand embroidery. The regimental banners are made of heavy taffeta silk with an eagle and the regimental coats of arms are embroidered by hand. There are as many as 20 different shades of silk used in embroidering each banner. The workman must use the greatest care and judgment in her work in order that the different shades blend properly.

The colors for the President, secretary of war, chief of staff and West Point cadets are embroidered by hand in the same manner as the regimental colors.

Daily Lenten Thought

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist
Lent is a holy season, which has its climax in "Holy Week." What does it mean to be holy? There are many people for whom the word has no meaning at all, or who shrink from the word as suggestive of some strange, unusual, or artificial attitude toward life. They do not associate holiness with practical common sense, or with red-blooded strength, or with ordinary human tastes and feelings.

But why not? Holiness is not some strange and weird thing. It is a relationship. Lent is a holy season because of its relation to the earthly life of Jesus. Holy Week commemorates the holiness of the final week of his humanity in suffering and the glory of his divinity in the completeness of his sacrificial love.

Lent emphasizes the nearness of Jesus to human life, and not his strangeness or remoteness. It was his love, his purpose, that made him holy. He was fully human; the saintly people of his day misjudged him and hated him because they did not understand his sort of holiness.

To be "holy" in the true sense is to be human as Jesus was human; to love as he loved; and to accept the love that he gives. Holiness does not limit, but enlarges our lives. To be holy is to have our lives rightly guided and directed—related to the plan of the great Architect who controls human destinies in love.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

Fate arranged an enlistment for Spanish-American Army service, and after that a return home to earn more money. Before Fried finally joined the Navy and was assigned to ship. His first struck blow, and savagely. It tells this story of his first experiences as a sailor.

BY CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
(Copyright, 1929, Associated Press)
CHAPTER II

Johnny Fischer, my pal, and I were in New York for a while digging trenches for a street car company which was electrifying its system, eliminating the horse car. In our spare time we were always along the waterfront, and once or twice were privileged to go aboard sailing ships to make a very careful inspection. This only made me yearning for the sea greater.

One day we ventured aboard a passenger ship. With m'dy shoes we walked through the dining saloon just after white canvas runners had been laid. We had only gone a short distance when the mate shouted at us. We ran, and he followed. We dashed through companionways, up and down stairways and ladders and finally located the gangplank, which we crossed, just out of the reach of the mate. We concluded then and there that we had better remain away from ships for a while.

The Spanish-American war began about this time. We started for home, having developed muscularity in the great city. Fellows were enlisting. Here was an opportunity, I thought, to get out into the world, and I enlisted in the Second Artillery, Company M, at Winthrop, Mass. The artillery was not desired for some reason or other, and the result was that we became an infantry regiment. However, we saw no service and returned to New York the early summer of 1899.

To Havana and return was my first experience at sea. The days and nights on shipboard did not seem long enough, and while I was in Cuba I always longed for the time I would get back aboard a transport. Having had my first experience with Father Neptune, I wanted to get back to the sea, but when I returned home I found, for financial reasons, that I had to go to work once again to get funds to resume my travels. Eight months later I started again with a companion for New York to enlist in the Navy. I had decided that it must be the Navy.

Much to my regret my new pal failed to pass the physical examination, and he returned to Worcester, while I was assigned to the Hartford, Farragut's old flagship, which was then in Venezuelan waters. I took passage on the old Buffalo and had my first real encounter with Neptune's wrath. For a day or so I was not quite sure that I used good judgment in enlisting in the Navy, but the weather cleared and the seas moderated, and I could once again enjoy life on the bounding main.

In 1900, I started my real service with the Navy when I began swabbing decks, learning seamanship and gunnery and various other drills. Being a full fledged sailor with a job's uniform, the same one which he previously inspired me, I had plenty of confidence, and naturally it wasn't long before I had my first fight.

One day while aboard the Buffalo I was bathing myself in a tub of water on the deck when another sailor passed and called me a rookie. That was an insult. All the boys watched and enjoyed the bout. I was victorious, fortunately, and afterwards learned that this fellow had only enlisted two weeks prior to my entering the Navy.

When we joined the Hartford we began to appreciate the lot of a sailor working under the most trying circumstances. In tropical waters the heat was intense, and only once in a while were we cooled by an occasional rain storm. Climbing up and down the rigging caused the skin on our feet to blister, for we were, after all, still rookies.

Returning to the deck made matters worse, for the heat caused the tar between boards to become soft and sticky, so that whenever we walked we suffered intense pain as it was absolutely impossible to keep the tar from getting into the open wounds. Many of the fellows were laid up for days at a time before their feet healed.

For three or four months the Hartford, which I had learned to love and consider as my own ship, remained in the tropics. We lived on salt horse, hard tack and corned beef hash, a menu that was varied only on Sundays by the addition of plum duff.

Plum duff is a sort of plum pudding and is highly prized by the sailor, or was in those days. I remember the old rule, "You must never steal a shipmate's plum duff in a fight." That would start many a fight. A man found guilty of taking his shipmate's most coveted tit-bit was ostracized socially, but it often happened, as you can well imagine. Not for long, though. I always found that the fellows in the Navy never held grudges very long. They were always ready to forgive their shipmates and would always uphold each other, right or wrong, in arguments or fights against outsiders.

I was on the Hartford five years, and you can readily understand that it meant home for me. On that ship I had all the experience that prepared me for my later years at sea. I actually started to sea the early part of 1900 and the Hartford was my first school.

On that ship I was a landsman, then, by study and hard work, became an ordinary seaman, later a quartermaster and finally chief quartermaster. In five years I progressed more than I could have dreamed of before when I played on North Pond lake back home, for the reason that a sailor with that job's wide trousers and flat hat was what I hoped to be.

I had no idea of the snappy uniform of the chief quartermaster these days. An admiral's uniform would mean nothing to me after I received that commission, but I decided to continue up the ladder.

GIRL FRACTURES LEG IN COASTING CRASH

Miss Maxine Goeres, 13-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. Goeres, 319 N. Rankin, fractured her right leg in three places in a coasting accident on the Green Day-st hill at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The child was sitting on a sled with Miss DeLores Tustison on the side of the hill when several boys on another sled crashed into them. Miss Tustison was uninjured. The injured girl was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital where she will be confined for about six weeks.

Hoover Follows Mother's Steps In Picking Church

Washington—(AP)—In selecting the Orthodox Friends Meeting House as his permanent church home when he became president, Herbert Hoover is but following in the footsteps of his mother, Hulda Hoover, the Quaker minister.

The President-elect holds a birthright membership in the simple little brick structure where he will worship. According to Quaker custom, a child, at birth, becomes a member of the church with which one of his parents are affiliated.

Long years ago dauntless Hulda Hoover, tramping through the snow and mud around the little Quaker village of West Branch, Iowa, decided that the more progressive, liberal branch of the Quaker faith best suited her beliefs. She joined the Orthodox Friends and left the Conservative branch, which prohibiting singing and preaching.

There is no flurry or excitement attending the placing of the cornerstone of the little church, where hundreds of cars will be parked every Sunday after inauguration. The seating capacity of the place, auditorium and Sunday school room combined, is about 300. It will be the smallest church ever chosen by a President. The next smallest was the Dutch Reformed church attended by Theodore Roosevelt.

A few more chairs are being placed in the Sunday school room. That is all the preparations that are being made. The church members are much pleased that Mr. Hoover, the former a cousin of the President-elect, are members of the same church. They came to Washington from West Branch. Mr. Hoover is an attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The simple order of the service will not be changed when the President-elect of the United States attends. The orthodox branch, in contrast with the Friends Harkside Meeting House, which Mr. and Mrs. Hoover have sometimes attended while in Washington, hires a minister and has singing by the congregation.

LAWRENCE DEBATERS TO MEET MICHIGAN TEAM

The Lawrence college negative debate team will meet the affirmative team from Western State Teachers college, Kalamazoo, Mich., at Green Bay Tuesday evening. The teams will appear before the officials, employees and guests of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation, people who are vitally interested in the question to be debated, "Resolved That the development and operation of the principle sources of hydro-electric power in the United States be assumed by the government."

"I am strong for Luckies."

John Gilbert
Celebrated Screen Star

"Motion picture actors are under a great strain—they need the comforting qualities of a good cigarette. That is why most of us smoke Lucky Strike. The marvelous toasted flavor of Luckies brings complete enjoyment and relaxation but does not hurt the throat or wind. I am strong for Luckies—they are the 'stars' of the cigarette picture. I would rather have a Lucky after a meal than rich pastries or desserts."

JOHN GILBERT

The modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real aniline. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market. Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that red-dyed look of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this when you buy. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

FIRE CAUSES
$10,200 LOSS
TO MERCHANTSDense Smoke Hinders Firemen Combatting Blaze in Business Section

Neenah—Fire which threatened the west end of the city's business district was discovered shortly after 9 o'clock Monday evening in the Sherry building on N. Church-st., occupied jointly by the Stanelle Service station and by Fred Ehler's auto top manufacturing plant.

The origin of the blaze is not known. Mr. Stanelle left the place 10 minutes before the dense clouds of smoke poured from the building. Charles Larson, who was passing, sent in the alarm. The blaze apparently smoldered in the large stock of tires and auto equipment for some time before being discovered and had gained some headway when the department arrived. Clouds of smoke filled the streets making it almost impossible for the firemen to get near to the building. The building, which was of frame structure covered with corrugated steel, was completely destroyed. Both men have insurance to cover the loss to their equipment and stock.

The blaze spread to the roof of the building to the south, occupied by Herman Lenz, plumber, in which a stock of goods was damaged by water and smoke. This loss also is covered by insurance. This building was damaged on the roof where the blaze had gained considerable headway beneath the tin before it was discovered. Five lines of hose were raised from hydrants and the new pumper.

The Stanelle building will be torn down as it is damaged beyond repair. Damage to the Stanelle stock is estimated at $7,000; to the Ehler stock, $1,200 and the Lenz stock, $2,000. Fortunately there was but little wind blowing from the north to the Sherry building. The north side of the street, occupied by the News-Times, Quinn, brothers and the Universal grocery store would have been in danger.

A new truck owned by the Stanelle company was snaked out of the burning building before it was damaged. This was Mr. Ehler's second fire within the last two years.

While the main part of the city's fire equipment was at the church-st. fire, an alarm was sent in from the Lakeview mill on Lake-st. where a small automobile caught fire while parked beside the road. The firemen had a narrow escape from overturning with the truck, when a party driving an auto attempted to re-join the main part of the city's fire truck. The driver, W. Hooper, took a chance in passing the foolhardy driver and went into the ditch with one of the wheels caught the heavy truck from overturning and returning to the road.

FIRE CLOWN GUEST OF KIWANIS CLUB

Harry K. Rogers Entertains
at Program in Brin Theatre

Menasha—Harry K. "Smokey" Rogers, the fire clown connected with the Western Actural bureau of Chicago, who was the guest of Menasha Kiwanis club Tuesday, arrived in Menasha from Chicago on an early morning train, but was unable to carry out his morning engagement with the school children on account of his baggage having gone through to Manitowish. Instead of appearing at St. Mary school at 9 o'clock and at Brin theatre at 10:30 the program was changed to a joint meeting at the Brin theatre during the afternoon. He was the guest of honor and speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon at Memorial building Tuesday which was attended by the Rotary club and invited guests.

BUS TRANSPORTATION

Universal satisfaction is expressed by the citizens of cities and villages served by busses of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. that the differences between the utility and the city of Menasha have been adjusted so that adequate transportation facilities could be restored. Principals in the recent controversy deserve the congratulation of all the people for the friendly spirit in which they approached the matter of their differences to the end that the people might be better served with transportation.

The inconvenience caused the traveling public by the comparatively minor disturbance of bus schedules from Jan. 17 to last Saturday gives only a faint idea of the catastrophe which awaited this community on March 15, when all intercity busses were to have ceased operating, an occurrence happily averted by the agreement reached last Friday. The inconvenience, resulting from transfer of passengers at the north city limits, serious to those incommode, was only a trifle compared with the loss and distress which would follow the entire abandonment of the bus service by the power company.

It would seem to be the part of wisdom on the part of communities dependent upon transportation for their convenience and prosperity to evolve some plan that would assure adequate service at reasonable rates under all circumstances. For years bus transportation has been made a football by all the cities of the valley and controversies and discussions over license fees, parking regulations and bus stops have been the rule rather than the exception.

With our recent experience still clearly before us it should be the object of the communities as well as the carriers to find a sound and permanent solution of the bus transportation problem, immune from constantly changing city and village governments and uncertain public sentiment, and a way should be found to permit and encourage constant service.

The opportunity for a splendid service to the public is afforded at the meeting tonight of representatives of the cities and villages served by the power company to consider a uniform method of assessing license fees. If these men will consider bus transportation from the standpoint of the way it affects the general public in all the communities served, they will be enabled to work out a plan that will protect this important service against assaults that cause great inconvenience and distress to those dependent upon it.

NAVAL EXPERIMENT'S

If a story sent out from Washington recently is accurate, the two most costly war vessels ever built are slated for the junk heap, after only 15 months' service. They are the airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga, which cost $43,000,000 apiece and at the time of their launching were the pride of the American navy. These ships are said to have fallen far below expectations in their performance and usefulness. Representative French of Idaho, chairman of the House sub-committee which handles all naval appropriations, is quoted as saying: "It is unfortunate, but it cannot be helped. The cost of operating these ships is so stupendous that it would actually save the government money to build new ships and withdraw these from active service."

They are to be used, it is said, only until aircraft carriers of a new design can be constructed. One such is provided for in the new naval bill. It is recognized that warcraft of new types are always to some extent experimental and uncertain. But surely such a lesson should persuade naval authorities to exert the utmost caution to avoid such costly mistakes in the future. It might suggest, for instance, going a little slow with those 15 cruisers, until up-to-date requirements in that line are definitely established.

PEACEFUL COERCION

The Kellogg-Briand peace treaty, regarded by Senator Johnson of California and by many another critic as pretty near "nothing" in binding power, nevertheless has started something. It was, on the face of it, only a pious resolution to stop fighting. But it did commit the nations to the moral principle of keeping the peace. And still more, it set people to thinking, the world over. One of the results of this thinking is the introduction of the Capper resolution in the United States senate, and a similar resolution in the house of representatives, and an immediate popular response at home and abroad.

Imagine a simple parallel in private life. Suppose a group of men sitting down to a poker game, were to agree that they "wouldn't cheat any more." That would be fine. They would all feel a pleasant glow of virtue. But some experienced player might soon suggest: "All right, boys, we're going to play square. But now, just supposing some fellow does happen to get careless, and is caught sticking cards up his sleeve—what are we going to do about it?" The mildest answer possible would be, "stop playing with him. Put him out of the game."

Well, suppose some nation that has agreed with its neighbors not to fight any more starts another war, or threatens one. Senator Capper's idea is that the other parties to the agreement shall stop playing with him. Because he is cheating with cards, they will deal him no more cards. They will sell him no more chips—no more war materials. This is peaceful coercion by economic weapons. Is there any other way to obtain peace without shedding blood for it?

THE SPIRIT OF AN AVIATOR

We're willing to make a prediction, right now, that when David Clark of West Orange, N. J., grows up he is going to be quite an aviator. To be sure, he's only 11 years old now, and that may be predicting quite a long way ahead, but we're confident.

Why? Well, here's the story: David went to the New York aviation show recently and was all stirred up by what he saw. So he went home, got some laths and cloth, and made himself a set of wings. He wasn't quite sure how they would work, but the spirit of the pioneer was in him; so, in defiance of his parents, he went to the porch roof of a friend's home and boldly jumped off.

Unluckily, the wings didn't work. David took a spill, broke his flying apparatus and cut a 'bad gash' in his head. But he's still confident that he'll do better next time.

With a spirit like that, we predict that David eventually will be quite a flyer.

LINDBERGH IN THE CABINET

These suggestions that Col. Charles Lindbergh be given a post in Hoover's air cabinet, so-called, are sure to strike a responsive chord. As assistant secretary of commerce in charge of aviation, the young flyer would have his opportunity to aid the cause of civilian aviation in the United States greatly increased.

However, in his present capacity as private citizen, Colonel Lindbergh has been doing that job pretty well. There is no way of telling just how much of the present interest in flying is due directly to him, but surely he is largely responsible. He flew the Atlantic and gave us confidence in planes; then he toured the United States, flew down through Mexico and Central America, and helped establish a trans-continental train-plane service. Now he has just given the Central American air line a sendoff.

Really, he couldn't do much more if he did have an official position.

Professor Einstein's scientific formula probably won't make a fortune out of science, but think how profitable it might have been in the laundry business!

Girls on Mars are reported to have six legs apiece. The very place for a Scotchman to get his money's worth at a burlesque show.

Cruisers may be the best way to obtain peace, but we've found that a little candy always works pretty well at home.

It is predicted science eventually will be able to control the weather. If science is wise, it won't try anything like that.

It won't be long now until Easter when the ladies can high-hat one another.

POST-TONIC

The Remedy is Worse Than the Malady

Harold the Seer says he likes the modesty of Colonel Lindbergh, but that he thinks the Lone Eagle should not try to be too much like President Coolidge. Besides, he says, Charlie owes it to a few million girls to tell all about his engagement—just because he couldn't marry them all.

—Galahad Jiltme.

Darned funny coincidence, isn't it how surprising things happen just before big events. Now there's Jack Dempsey, for instance. A dear, kind-hearted burglar or kidnaper comes along and shoots a bullet at Jack. Jack doesn't hurry to tell the police. It makes a darn good story. Of course, the fact that Jack's a promoter doesn't hurt the story. Hope it gets him a few more radio listeners in this neck of the woods. He deserves it—because he was original enough not to be robbed of his pearl necklace.

—Rudolph of the Bayou.

"A man dat's always thinkin' 'bout money," said Uncle Remus, "is liable to find he has turned his shirt life into nuffin' but a penny ante poker game."

PLAYING SAFE WITH TRAFFIC COPS
A colored man was driving an old diver in the south. In lieu of the license plate, he had a shingle attached to the rear of his car and on this shingle were printed these words: "Lost It"

Liza, the Negro cook, answered the telephone one morning and a cheerful voice inquired, "What number is this?"

Liza was in no mood for trifling questions, and said with some asperity, "You all ought to know. You done called it."

Rufus: "Ah don't know why mah wife takes out so much insurance on me."

Mose: "Yo' is her fourth husband, isn't yo'?"

Rufus: "Uh, huh, an' dat's what hab me worried."

Bad Case—A psychiatric board was testing the mentality of a Negro soldier.

"Do you ever hear voices without being able to tell who is speaking or where the sound comes from?"

"Yes, sah," answered the Negro.

"And when does this occur?"

"When I'se talking over de telephone."

SCIPPIO'S FINISH
Her Pappy: "Look'er, Scipio, do's yo' all intent to make marriage wid mah dater, Larkspur?"

Scipio: "Yas sah, yas sah, dat's de end Ah has in view."

Surgeon: "I feel duty bound to tell you that four out of five patients die under this operation. Now, is there anything that you would like me to do for you before I begin?"

Colored Gent: "Yessuh, kindly hand me my hat."

An illiterate dorkard who applied for a job at an office was asked to count sheep. He opened the door to let them file out, and began counting in this manner: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten—er—er, another, another."

Smottmeyer (entering pet store): "My good man, do you handle goldfish?"

Clerk: "Yes, sir."

Smottmeyer: "You shouldn't, you know it isn't good for them."

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuesday, March 1, 1901

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hauert, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Hauert, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Loesslyoung of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hauert of Black Creek were at Oshkosh the previous day where they attended the auction on the farm of George Hauert.

John McNaughton and daughter, Barbara, were to leave the following morning for California where they were to spend about six weeks.

Miss Blanche Goodenough had returned from Detroit where she was visiting friends.

Miss Anna Hoffman had accepted a position in the Kamps-Sacksteder Drug store.

W. H. Hart, A. G. Hatch, F. C. Hyde, G. E. Jackson and Fred Miller were to be ushers for March for the Men's League of First Methodist church.

W. H. Hutchinson, H. G. Sackcer and L. B. Kilbourne were members of the welcome committee.

TEN YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Feb. 23, 1919

President Wilson that day stated that he was confident that the country would rally with the practical unanimity to the support of the league of nations.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Konzelmann celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary the previous night by entertaining about 90 guests at their home on College-ave.

The Misses Frieda and Hannah Timm, Rankin-st., entertained the Young Peoples Dramatic club of Zion Lutheran church the previous evening. Prizes at games were won by Elsie Radtke and Herman Tock.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Schuetter and Henry Schuetter had gone to Chicago to attend the wedding of George M. Schuetter and Marion Powers of that city. Mr. Schuetter was secretary of the Schuetter-Johnson Candy Company.

Louis Keller and Henry Schell won prizes at skat at the weekly tournament at Elks club the previous night.

On account of an outer and inner bar across the channel connecting Lake Michigan with the Gulf of Venezuela, only vessels drawing less than 12 feet of water can enter the port, with the result that but two shipping companies, one American and one Dutch, maintain a weekly passenger and freight service between New York and Maracaibo.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THO SANE

This is a health talk. It concerns your health. Especially if you happen to be, or to have at heart, the happiness of a member of a credulous sex. I want to make it quite clear why I am printing today's talk, for otherwise I fear some readers may suspect I am just handing myself a bouquet. I am doing that, but incidentally, incidentally, I like flowers while I'm conscious—like anybody else, except carnations; if anybody has any carnations to get rid of he will please wait till I am good and dead. Carnations, it seems to me, are strictly funeral and they always smell that way. But this is no funeral we're giving today. On the contrary.

Dear Doctor Brady:

As your writings the first of which I ever read was in a copy of American Motherhood, have been such a help in bringing up my children, I am going to put in my 2 cents worth on your side of the colds from exposure controversy.

So far, there's nothing to get excited about. The lady seems to feel grateful for something she learned from my writings and maybe a little sympathetic or sorry for the said plight which my arguments have placed me. Let us read on and see what advice she offers:

When I was a child we were not allowed to go out to play in stormy weather for fear we would catch cold. Due to your writings my children run in and out of doors whenever they please. On stormy days if they all get out for even a little while it certainly relieves the tension all around and they come in feeling much brighter and better natured, and I have had a short rest. They go out during blizzards, icy cold, and spring thaws when the slush is ankle deep. They sit on the snow or ice and never have they suffered any ill effects from that. They have colds only when there is an epidemic going around.

My children are far healthier and happier than we children were with "don't do this, you will catch cold" and "don't do that, you will take more colds" everlastingly dinned into us at home and abroad. As I look back it seems as if everybody had a regular complex about taking cold. If you are lifting that bottle from the land you are certainly going a good work.

Another thing that you are to be congratulated upon for doing is taking the score out of a girl's being of the feminine sex. What with the fear of catching cold and the fear of doing anything which, while it might not injure one now would surely do so "later on" and when a girl is married, the fear of marking her children; and finally the fear of change of life; being feminine was certainly a worrisome business. Girls and women were and other enlightened doctors and educators a heartfelt vote of thanks.

Sincerely yours,

H. P. G.

The extraordinary thing about Mrs. G's testimony, and the reason it impresses and gratifies me is that the lady is a mother of several children and yet her views of the matter she cites coincide with my own at a number of points. She has practiced what I preach, and she finds it right.

There are not a few folk in the world who are happier because I ranted this way, and it makes me happy to know this.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
SUSANITA TAYLOR

Is sassafras too injurious to one's health. We like it and have been drinking it three times a day for several months, but we have been told recently that it thins the blood too much. (D. L.)

Answer—I believe it is quite harmless.

Uninvited Company
(Mrs. J. E. R.)

With special precaution to keep away from fire or flame, saturate the hair for about three hours with a mixture of equal parts of kerosene and vinegar, keeping the head covered with bathing cap or towel while. Then shampoo. Then dab with a fine tooth comb wet each time with hot vinegar, till no more nits are found.

Late in the Game

I have three children aged 11, 9 and 5. Their teeth are very defective. I will appreciate it very much if you will suggest a diet which will build a set of strong teeth. (Mrs. W. E.)

Answer—I could as readily suggest a diet that will grow horns. The time when diet can influence the development of the teeth is before the children are born. The expectant mother's diet has considerable to do with that. Possibly, too, adequate vitamins in the infant's diet have an influence. But it is doubtful whether the diet can make much difference from now on. However, here are the essential things:

Each child should have, not less than one pint of pure fresh milk daily. Infants under a year old should receive cod liver oil daily. All children should have sunbaths—get tanned all over. Every child over 3 years of age should have at least one fresh vegetable or green, and at least one raw vegetable daily—raw turnip, raw carrot, raw tomato, radish, potato, whatever the child likes to chew raw. Every one should have fresh fruit in season, particularly at breakfast.

LOCATING THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Editor of the Post-Crescent—The question of whether, and if so where, a new Senior High School shall be built in Appleton, seems to be more or less in the public eye at present. It is certainly a matter which concerns the city deeply, for there is scarcely anything which is of more importance to us than our system of public education and its wise and efficient management. It is to be and after three years of this, three more years of real hardship is too much to ask of our children. Of course it could be done, by some of them, anyway the writer grew up on a farm and walked two miles to school every day. But Appleton is not a country school district, it is a city which prides itself on being progressive, and when its citizens pay city taxes for the support of their schools they have a right to expect them to be located within a reasonable distance.

When the Wilson and Roosevelt Junior High Schools were located on the very edge of the city, it seemed reasonable to reflect that the city would very likely continue to expand to the north and west, so that in the course of time these schools would be well within new residential districts. But this could hardly be said of placing our one Senior High School south of the river. Expansion in that direction would soon overflow the county line, and residents of another county could not urge that Appleton school buildings should be located with their convenience in mind. And if we are to expect further growth of our city northward, beyond the Roosevelt School, High School on the Riverview grounds would be in the future even more than at present inconveniently located for a great many of its students.

The writer has no definite solution of the problem to offer. Have we thoroughly studied the possibility and practicality of remodeling and enlarging the present High School building on the block where it now stands? It is not an ideally quiet spot, but Appleton is developing into a sizable city, and a city High School can hardly expect to avoid being on a city street. At any rate, the greatest good of the greatest number should be the guiding principle in deciding this question, and the site south of the river seems open to grave objections from this point of view.

A Resident of the First Ward.

AN ABLE SUPERVISOR

Editor Post-Crescent—The residents of the town of Grand Chute are indeed fortunate in having so able a Supervisor representing them on the County Board. L. Laabs deserves the thanks of every taxpayer in this county for his efforts during the present county board session toward establishing a business like policy in county affairs, particularly in the snow removal problem.

The present highway committee appears to be entirely unfitted for the task of this important committee. The recent revelations, as published in this paper, showing the shameful mismanagement of the county's equipment, is evidence enough to substantiate this statement. It is a waste of money to entrust this committee with more funds. It is apparent they have no plans which would make use of this money toward accomplishing its intended purpose. Their policy in purchasing county supplies, particularly oil and grease, is not in accordance with present day business methods. The county board, in refusing to make public a detailed report of this particular transaction has violated its duty to the taxpayers of Outagamie-co.

Surrounding counties apparently have men in charge of highway work who really understand this business and this, no doubt, is the reason why their highways have been open during the present winter. Our county is still floundering around in the snow. There are numerous roads which have never been touched. The committee give as its reason a lack of equipment when in reality what they need is a dose of "house sense."

If we had more Supervisors like August Laabs I am certain that county could establish and run county affairs on a par with any progressive present day corporation. "A Reader"

MAID SAYS WOMAN KISSED, HUGGED AGED BENEFACCTOR

Petition for Guardian for John Mueller Taken Under Advisement

With more than 500 persons jammed into every available space in the circuit courtroom Monday afternoon, the hearing on the petition of Fred Mueller, Appleton, for the appointment of a guardian for the person and property of his brother, John Mueller, 1618 N. Superior-st., was completed.

Judge Daniel McDonald of the Winnebago court, Oshkosh, presided in the case in the place of Judge Fred V. Heinemann. The judge took the matter under advisement and ordered Attorney John Morgan, who was appointed temporary guardian, to continue in that capacity until a decision was ready.

The most sensational feature of the Monday afternoon session was the eloquent appeal of Attorney A. H. Krugmeier, who represents the complainant, for the appointment of a guardian.

CHARGES INCOMPETENCY
"Never have we seen a more brazen witness than Mrs. Vanda Barth, the beneficiary of Mueller's sudden generosity," Krugmeier shouted. "We must brand all her testimony as false. We have a man 50 years old spending nearly one-third of his entire estate in a few months on a person who is not even a relative."

"He gives her cash, a house, and buys automobiles, furs and jewelry for her. I claim he is feeble minded and that his incompetency has been definitely established by the testimony of witnesses who told their stories here."

"If only for the sole reason of protecting Mueller against losing the balance of his property and protecting him from becoming a public charge I say that a guardian should be appointed," Mr. Krugmeier ended.

The crowded courtroom burst into scattered applause as Mr. Krugmeier took his seat.

Mr. Smith contended that the petition should be dismissed because the law provided that the court had no jurisdiction to appoint a guardian unless it had been definitely proved that the alleged incompetent was truly incompetent.

Miss Edna Reuter, Neenah, who was employed by Mrs. Barth as a maid from October until after Christmas of 1925 testified that she had seen Mrs. Barth kiss Mueller, put her arms around him and that she went into his room and the door was closed.

MRS. BARTH OBJECTS
On cross examination Miss Reuter said that when Mr. Barth objected Mrs. Barth answered:

"You shut up I'm getting the money here."

Once while the girl was testifying Mrs. Barth from the side of the courtroom, began objecting in a loud voice.

The judge warned her to be quiet or she would have to leave the room.

"When she'll go with me," Mrs. Barth answered referring to Miss Reuter.

Another and more severe warning from the judge silenced Mrs. Barth. But at frequent intervals, she whispered to her husband who sat beside her. During the proceedings Mrs. Barth had her arm about her husband and often held his hand.

Mr. Mueller on the stand admitted that he gave a deed to his house to Mr. and Mrs. Barth, that he purchased one automobile and that he had given the family a lot of furniture and other articles.

He said he knew what he was doing and that he gave the money to Mrs. Barth so that his relatives couldn't get it. He said he understood perfectly that he couldn't get it back.

Mr. Mueller denied the story of Miss Reuter. He said Mrs. Barth had never kissed him or hugged him or even held his hands. He also denied that Mrs. Barth suggested that he should give her the money or the gifts.

FIND HIM SANE
Two doctors, C. E. Ryan and G. T. Hegner, testified they had examined Mueller and found him sane. The doctors admitted that in so far as his education was concerned Mueller had the mind of a 14 year old child, but they refused to say he was insane and also refused to say he was absolutely normal.

William Kappell, 1508 N. Superior-st. told of taking a trip to Milwaukee with Mrs. Barth and Mueller and said that when they returned that Mrs. Barth and two of her children had stayed with Barth in his home on N. Superior-st. for two or three days.

BUY THREE CARS
The purchase of three automobiles by Mrs. Barth and Mueller was told by John Adrians, local auto dealer. Mr. Adrians said that Mrs. Barth was alone when Mueller purchased the first car. Later Mrs. Barth bought another car and still later paid $450 cash for a smaller car for her brother-in-law, William Wenzlaff.

Because Mueller had spent between one-third and one-half of his estate in the few months since he had known Mrs. Barth, Attorney Morgan told the court he felt, after a complete investigation of the case, that a guardian should be appointed to handle Mueller's affairs in the future.

The "affair" started in 1928 when Mueller gave Mrs. $1,500 to pay off all the debts which the Barth family had acquired. Mrs. Barth is the mother of six children and previous to her meeting with Mueller she and her husband and family had been charity charges.

After getting the $1,500 "gift" the Barths moved from Black Creek into the same house with Barth. Later he deeded his house to the Barths with the provision that he was to occupy a room until his death. Mueller is 60 years old.

A short time after he gave Mrs. Barth $1,500 in bonds and he also purchased an automobile, furniture, radio, player piano and other things for Mrs. Barth and the family. She

HUMANE SOCIETY TO BE ORGANIZED

Meeting Will Be Held in County Judge's Office Thursday Night

Outagamie-co residents interested in humane work have been invited to attend a meeting Thursday night at the office of County Judge Fred V. Heinemann at the courthouse when plans for forming the Outagamie-co Humane society will be completed.

The proposed organization has already been incorporated with five Appleton men as signers. Peter Melcher, Appleton, who holds the office of county humane officer, with Judge Heinemann, have been active in the agitation for the humane society. There has been considerable interest in the new organization and a large crowd is expected at the meeting Thursday night.

This meeting probably will result in the election of officers and directors and in a plan for a county-wide campaign for members.

POLICEMEN'S REST BILL PASSES STATE ASSEMBLY

Assemblyman Oscar J. Schmlege's bill, proposing 24 hours of rest during each 192 hours for policemen in cities of the third class was passed by the state assembly Monday. The bill now goes to the state senate. If the measure becomes a law it will affect all cities with a population of from 10,000 to 25,000. Except in emergencies, when the police chiefs are given the right to cancel all days of rest, the policemen will have one day off after seven in service, according to the bill.

POLICE ARREST FOUR YOUTHS AT JUNCTION

Four boys ranging in age from 17 to 19 years, were picked up by officers at Appleton Junction late Monday night and taken to the police station. Three from Shawano were sent home Tuesday morning and the other, from Green Bay, is being held for investigation.

ALABAMA MERCHANT HELD FOR SHOOTING

Ozark, Ala. —(AP)— County officers Monday were confronted with conflicting stories of the shooting of Mrs. Love Nevill, a young widow, who was wounded probably fatally by Jesse Poundey, a merchant, in his store at County Line late Saturday night.

Poundey told the sheriff he drew a pistol and shot the woman after she had pointed a pistol at him. The quarrel started he said, when Mrs. Nevill, accompanied by several children, entered his store and accused him of neglecting her.

Mrs. Nevill, who was taken to a hospital with two bullet wounds in her right side, told Sheriff Kennedy that Poundey drew a pistol and when she reached for her gun, he opened fire. The woman told the officer Poundey is the father of her children and that she has lived for several years on a farm belonging to the merchant.

Poundey, married, was charged formally with the shooting and brought to the Dale-co jail here.

BEAUTY HINTS

Beauty Show Will Reveal Many Secrets

New York —(AP)— Now it is going to be told. The not-so-beautiful women will find out how their more favored sisters get that way.

The knowledge is to be given out at a National Beauty show here from March 27 to April 5.

The beauty show will be no place for amorous poets or young men who prefer their illusions left intact. Those raven tresses, sparkling eyes, ruby lips and alabaster necks are to be cruelly exposed as the work of technicians. Nature is not even on the invitation list.

Every cream, lotion, liniment, asstringent, powder, rouge, bandage, brush and bleach known to those who minister to woman's guile will have a place in the show. The complexion which made famous Angela's completion will be demonstrated next the val of something which took the freckles from Martha's nose. It is, this show, no place for Maud Muller's.

Skin tonics made of turtle eggs and victims little machines to tattoo a permanent blush will be exhibited. A forgotten queen had a shampoo liquid which turned straight hair astray. The formula will be available. And for those interested in reasonable renovations there is a process known as "skin peeling," which is just that.

The beauty show is expected to attract practitioners and students from all over America, and Nature is not even given credit for an asset in the beauty mart.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST — Maltine, grapes, cream, creamed dried beef with croutons, toast, marmalade, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Carrots and peas au gratin, cabbage and peanut salad, sliced oranges and bananas, cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER — Pork chops a la creole, twice baked sweet potatoes, buttered cauliflower, stuffed apple salad, raisin puff pudding, milk, coffee.

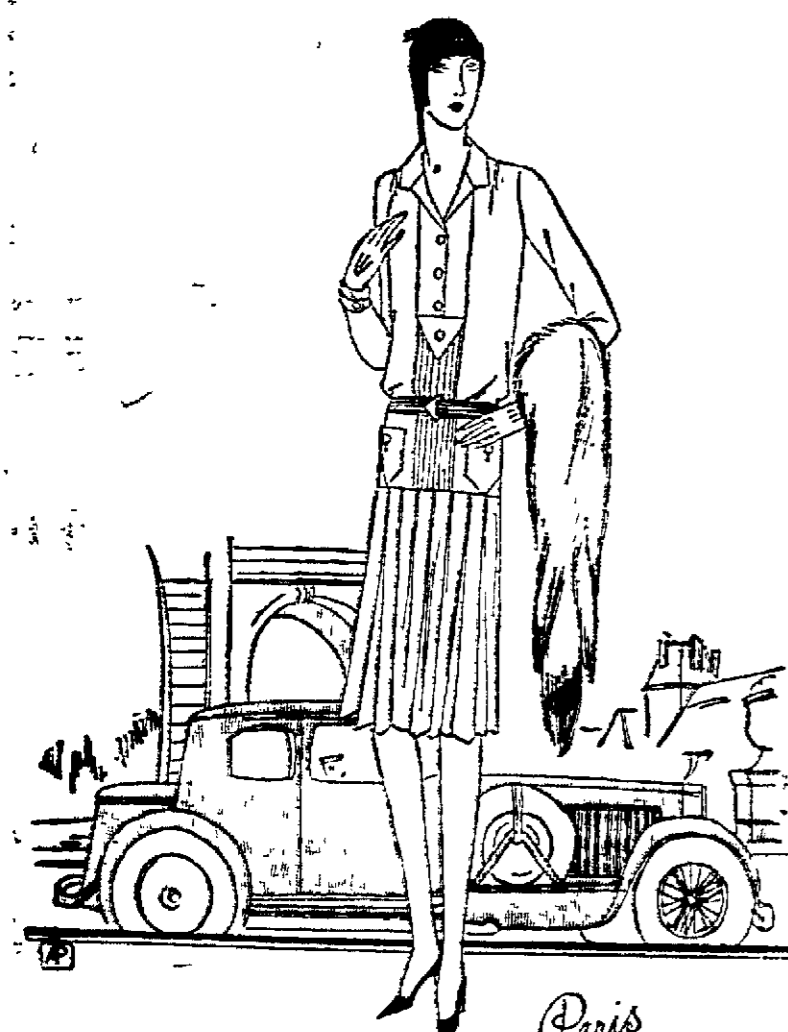

Since the pork chops must bake slowly for three hours, the housewife can put them in the oven with a low fire before she leaves for the afternoon. The sweet potatoes can have their first baking, mashing and seasoning and be put back in their shells ready to reheat for half an hour at dinner time. The cauliflower can be trimmed and allowed to stand in cold water for several hours and will cook in 30 minutes.

PORK CHOPS A LA CREOLE — Four pork chops, 1 onion, 1/2 sweet green pepper, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Have chops cut one inch thick. Trim and brown quickly in a hot frying pan, first on one side and then on the other. Use the fat trimmed from the chops to brown them in. Peel and slice onion. Dice card seeds and pith of pepper and shred flesh. Rub tomatoes through a coarse sieve to remove seeds. Add enough hot water to make two cups. Season with salt, pepper and sugar and add prepared onion and pepper. Place in casserole, add chops, cover and bake in a slow oven for three hours.

TAFETTA SCARF — A bright red taffeta scarf has its wide border embroidered like a flower garden in delicate poses in biscuit, white, black, lavender, pale green and yellow.

THE NEW Saint Sinner

By Anne Austin

There! She heard it again—"Crystal! Crystal! Are you there? It's Harry Blaine, Crystal!" Odd how real it seemed. Crystal's fevered brain marveled. She seemed to be awake, too. . . . Slowly, with terrific effort, the sick girl raised her hot, aching body, supporting herself upon an elbow. Experimentally, she raised the other hand and pressed hard upon her bandaged wound. She felt the stiffness of blood-caked fabric, then sharp answer of pain zig-zagging through her head. She was awake, too. . . .

Out there, calling to her, was Harry Blaine. If out of all the world, Crystal could have chosen her rescuer, the man would have been Harry Blaine, because he liked and understood her, and now—oh, now!—he was there, calling!

In a frenzy lest he give up in discouragement and go away, Crystal flung herself off the cot, dragged her stiff, hot body toward the door. She knew she could not make him hear her weak voice if she called from the cot.

"I'm here, Harry!" she gasped, as she dragged herself up by the knob of the door. "I'm—locked—in!" All her strength went into the effort, and before the first blow which was to break open the door was aimed against it, the girl slumped to the floor.

She had presence of mind enough to inch away from the door, as the reporter hurried his body against it, once, twice, three times. When the lock gave, and Harry Blaine catapulted into the dark room, his foot struck her outflung arm. A moan of pain told him what he had done. . . .

"Crystal! For God's sake speak to me, if you can, Crystal! Are you hurt?"

The reporter drew out a flashlight. For a moment he did not have the courage to press the button and release the light which might reveal unspeakable horrors. When he did force himself to do so, the brilliance of the sudden light made Crystal shrink and close her eyes.

It was a ghastly sight that met the boy's horrified eyes. The girl's brown hair, which he had never seen without its deep, precise marcel waves, was a tangled mat above the blood-soaked pink silk undergarment with which her hair had clummiestly bagged her wound. With her eyes closed, she looked dead. Those great, hazel eyes which Crystal had made so much of, fluttering the masked lashes, coyly twinkling their lure at any man who would look at her. . . .

Tears had cut paths down the dried coating of blood on cheeks which he had never seen without a heavy overlay of powder and rouge. The heavily-lipsticked, cupid's-bow mouth was replaced by wide, fever-cracked lips, snarled back in a hideous grimace of pain over the broad white teeth of which Crystal had been so proud.

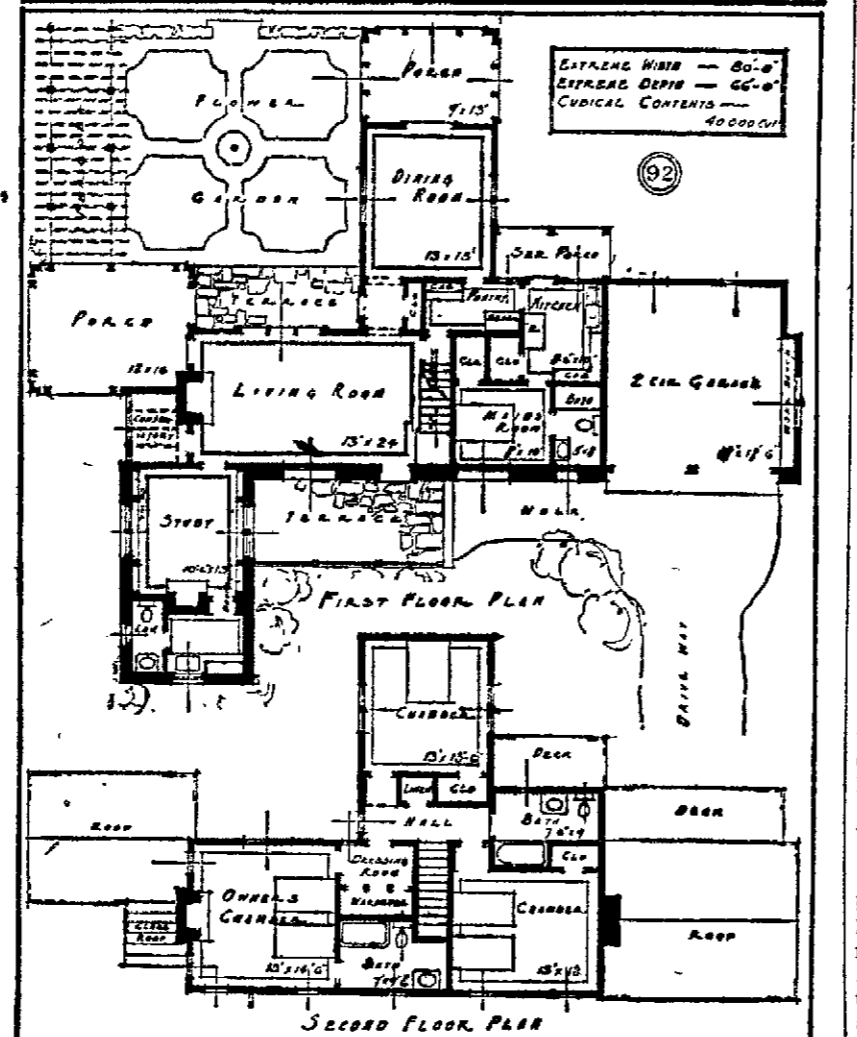

The short lashes, innocent of mascara now, fluttered apart, blinked again at the impact of light; then the hazel eyes focused upon him with the piteous appeal of a stricken animal.

"So glad—you came. Wanted—you," Crystal gasped weakly.

Light And Air Feature Attributes Of This Home

BY CORA W. WILSON
For NEA Service
THERE'S high adventure in planning your house. Wealth alone doesn't make a home nor is its happiness measured by its size. A tiny bungalow may often make for peace and joy of living that a mansion never could achieve.

The Colonial house shown above is of wood construction. It is made of shingles with a shingle roof, heavy wooden shutters, small-paned windows and white stucco chimneys.

There are five rooms, a bath and lavatory, a large pantry, closets and a two-car garage on the first floor. The layout is extremely good for a family that likes large, well-lighted rooms and it is well planned with regard to fresh air and terraces.

On the second floor is a large bedroom with a dressing room and cedar closets and a large black and white tile bath. A small hall separates this room from the other two bedrooms and bath, linen closet and two cedar closets.

This is House Plan No. 92. For additional information and cost estimate, write Cora W. Wilson, 420 Madison Avenue, New York City. Be sure to enclose the clipping from this newspaper.

TITLED BEAUTY WILL MODEL FOR PARIS HOUSE

London —(AP)— Mayfair's trek from bridge to business has gained another recruit. The Countess of Erroll is shortly leaving England to become a mannequin for a Paris dressmaking firm.

Lady Erroll, wife of the Earl of Erroll and a sister of the Earl de la Warr, is noted for her gift of wearing clothes beautifully. It is said that the simplest frock becomes distinguished when she puts it on, and a Paris dressmaker once offered to dress her for nothing if she would wear only his creations.

Her initiation into the mannequin parade will be made at Cannes, where she will show dresses for the famous designer, Captain Molyneux.

Lady Erroll is a typical English beauty with fair hair and blue eyes, and a roseleaf complexion. She is a sportswoman of note and has hunted in all parts of the world. Once she organized an all-woman hunting and exploring expedition and has herself shot lions, leopards and elephants.

She was formerly Lady Idina Sackville. The Earl of Erroll is her third husband.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS—

Northampton, Mass. —(AP)— Aladdin rubbed the lamp and instantly a genie appeared whom Aladdin commanded to bring food. The genie vanished and presently the table was laden with a sumptuous feast.

That's only a fairy tale. Something much more substantial than the magic of an otre has appeared here to whisk piping hot meals to the tables of a group of Northampton folks. It is a community kitchen and the beginning of an institution that will lift one more task from the shoulders of the housewife.

Fifteen families share in the products of this dinner kitchen, conducted in the demonstration house of the institute for the coordination of women's interests at Smith college. Mrs. Grace Morange, who knows all about cooking from experience in her own home, has charge of operations within the kitchen.

The costs, per meal per person, is only 35 cents. A delivery charge of 10 cents is made for having the food brought to the back doors of the home, and 10 cents to carry. The actual procedure is about as follows: A menu is prepared with varied and well-balanced meals. The housewives telephone the kitchen with their orders. Shortly before 6 P.

PUT ON YOUR THINKING CAP FOR THIS ONE

BY OLIVER ROBERTS BARTON

How would you feel if you lived in a giant's house, where table tops were on a level with your chin, chairs had to be climbed like step-ladders, and bureaus were enormous mountains of wood containing drawers as impossible to open as the side of Pikes Peak?

Living with all that over-sized furniture you would get very tired, wouldn't you? Everything over your head—everything to be reached for, tugged at, climbed on!

Our houses are very tiring to little children. That is why parents are making so much effort now to put little chairs, tables and beds in playrooms and nurseries. It used to be considered a luxury, but now it is looked upon as well-nigh a necessity.

CHILD'S FURNITURE POPULAR — Manufacturers have turned their attention to the needs of little people and it is now possible to buy the most adorable children's furniture imaginable.

But when the household budget won't budget enough to allow us to walk into a store and send home one of these quaint little painted sets, there is no real reason why the children should have to do without them.

Making furniture for little folk is a fascinating job. Wooden boxes turned upside down turn into all sorts of things, with a little assistance. They can be sawed off to proper height, given a coat of pink or blue enamel, and upholstered on top with a few layers of cotton and bright cartoon. Presto—a stool or small divan!

Old tables can be sawed off and painted to match Oblong boxes turned on end make cute little cupboards if cartoon curtains are hung over the opening. Small boxes can be fitted inside to hold various belongings.

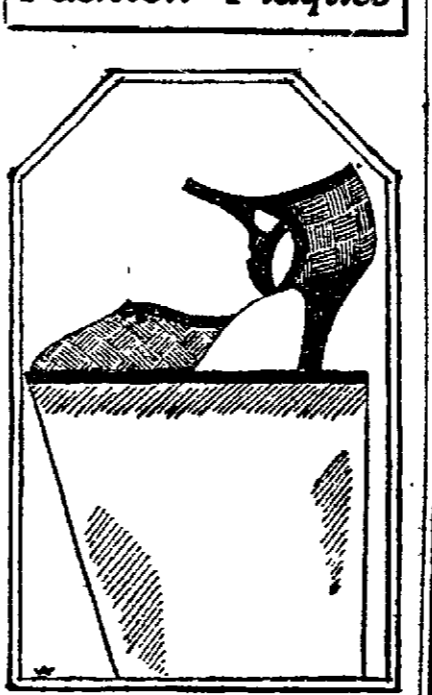

PUT ON YOUR THINKING CAP

To make chairs and even little bureaus is merely a matter of a little ingenuity. Again those useful boxes come in very handy. Legs long or short may be made from two-inch soft pine, easily procurable at a planing mill cut to any length desired, or it can be bought full length and sawed into pieces at home. As I have done these things with the greatest thrill imaginable I am passing the good word along.

Give me a hammer, some nails, a saw I can handle, yes, and a plane of a sort to take off rough places and splinters, and I am a carpenter not to be despised. And I think other mothers will be as much surprised and pleased as I was when I turned out my first piece of playroom furniture.

Stencils can be bought at paint stores, and bunnies and ducks. And Mother Goose characters will add greatly to the general ensemble if the brush is dipped into a contrasting color of paint and drawn carefully over. You can buy enamel now that dries in a few minutes.

Just then wee Copy shouted, "Oh! I see a queer thing down below. I'm sure we're going to land on it. This is the end of us." Then Scouty answered, "Mercy me. That's just a great big rubber tree. If we can surely hit it, there will be no cause to fuss."

And then they landed with a thump, and everyone began to bump right up and down. It surely was as queer as it could be. Then Clowny cried, "We've missed the ground, and I believe we're safe and sound." The Tynmites were saved by landing in the rubber tree.

Famous Recipe For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and cost little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable threefold effect. It goes right to the seat of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the germ-laden phlegm. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

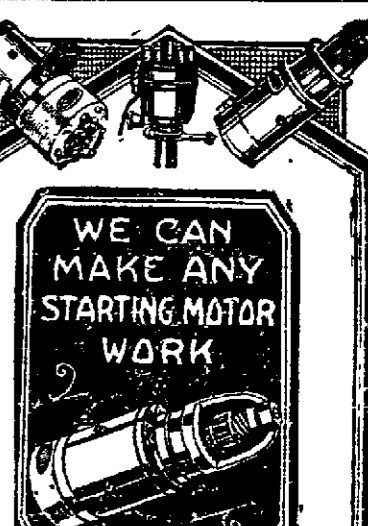

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

JAPAN, SET BACK 50 YEARS BY QUAKE, IS MAKING BIG STRIDES

Country Is Utilizing Natural Resources, Hotel Man Reveals

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright 1929

New York.—The volume of goods which the United States sells to Japan is bound to increase steadily in the next few years, as that country gradually recoups the losses occasioned by the earthquake of four years ago. This was the opinion expressed by H. S. K. Yamaguchi, one of the great hotel men of the Japanese empire, who is now studying conditions in America.

Mr. Yamaguchi declared the earthquake had set Japan back 50 years and told how he had seen the capital and industrial effort of his nation for generations wiped out in 30 seconds of temblors.

Despite these facts Japan has far surpassed other nations in some lines of endeavor, he indicated. The railroad system of Japan includes some 32,000 miles of main line track but the motor bus lines of transportation, which are strictly regulated by the government and which are not chartered unless public necessity is shown, have already exceeded this mileage by far. These lines, according to Mr. Yamaguchi, who operates several fleets of buses built for him in Cleveland, have been successful in developing both passenger and freight traffic from the smaller villages, many of them off the railroads. This has stimulated trade in the cities easily reached by bus and has been responsible for spreading modern ideas and methods.

USES WATERPOWER
It is doubtful if any other country today has taken so full an advantage of its natural waterpower sites as Japan. The country is mountainous and abounds in streams and waterfalls. As a result, the development of hydro-electric power has been rapid and widespread. There is not a village, according to Mr. Yamaguchi, which is not lighted by electricity.

Already the advantages of public utility consolidations have been recognized. Many of the smaller companies which formerly split up the business in various sections have been merged into two big concerns, the largest of which is capitalized for 300,000,000 yen. Further consolidations are expected and the sale of American-made electrical appliances, both for industrial and household use, may be anticipated on a rising scale for years to come.

ELECTRIFY ROADS
The electrification of the railroads has already commenced and many of the roads are electrically operated for a distance of 50 miles from the larger cities, such as Tokio and Yokohama. The size of the country, and the relatively short distance between centers, however, is most advantageous to motor bus and truck transportation.

More American tourists are coming to Japan than ever before, according to Mr. Yamaguchi, but he expresses doubt that his country will be able to benefit to the same extent as European countries from his trade. The size of the country enables tourists to cover many of the points of interest in a comparatively short time.

The rebuilding of Tokio and Yokohama is proceeding as rapidly as conservative financing will permit. The United States will be called on to supply the major portion of the steel building materials, hardware and lumber for the building programs.

COMMODITY NOTES

Chicago.—The recent severe cold over the winter wheat area has increased apprehension over the crop condition. This winter has been featured by alternate thawing and freezing which might increase the normal amount of winter killing. The uncertain outlook accounts for the relatively higher prices for wheat.

Hardware

San Francisco.—Entry of the chain-store idea into the retail hardware business is seen in the obtaining of options on a number of stores in northern and central California by a well known finance company. An operating company with close relations to a big hardware jobbing house is expected to be formed to manage one store in each city entered.

Steel

Youngstown, O.—The recession in steel scrap of $1 to $1.50 a ton for heavy melting scrap is one of the principal changes in prices in the Mahoning valley. Heavy scrap is selling over $19 a ton while some long term contracts are being made at $18.50 for March shipment.

Automobile Accessories
Lansing, Mich.—The Motor Wheel Corporation in the last year made the preceding year, according to officials of the company, the next for 1928 was $2,915,041.

Clothing
Cleveland.—The sales of the Kayne company, makers of children's clothing in the first half of their fiscal year were $115,000 above those for the corresponding period a year ago and the company expects the gain to be increased in the second half.

HIGH CLIFF PARK
BILL IS BEFORE
STATE LAWMAKERS

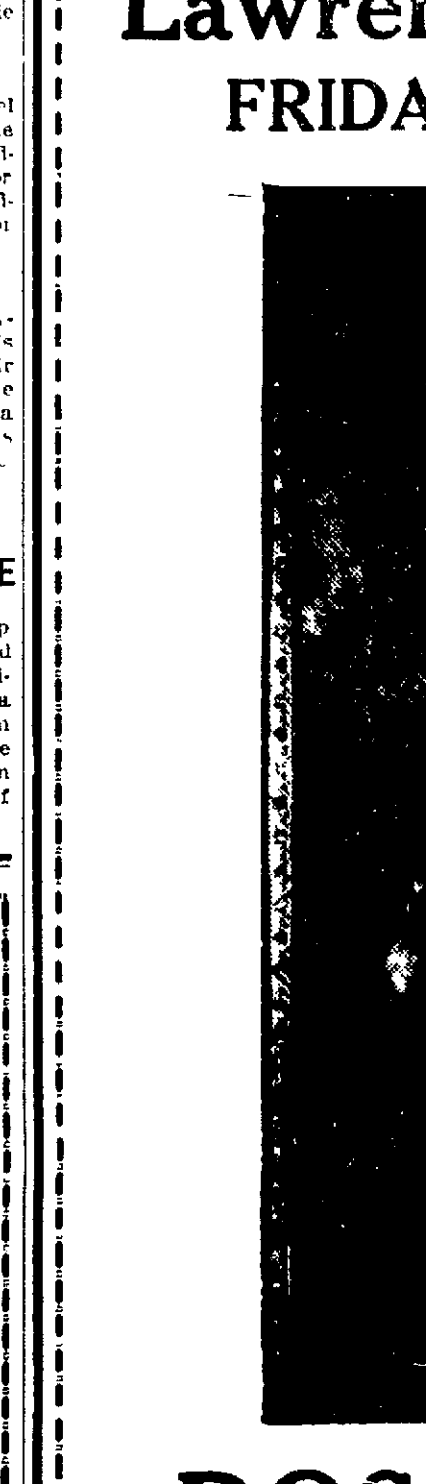

Consider Proposal to Purchase Site for Conversion into State Park

Madison.—(AP)—The state legislature now has bills before it for the purchase of state parks that it would take more than $1,000,000 from the state treasury and the Assembly conservator on committee will probably recommend to the next session that most of these purchases be made only under a put payment plan. The committee feels that not only should these parks be accepted, but that others in the south and east be taken so that a national center near the Lake Superior would be available. The bill for the purchase of the park bills by the Assembly and the joint finance committee, unless the legislature in the lower house contemplates a visit to the High Cliff Park in Wisconsin, the conservation committee of the state legislature will probably be the first visit. While it is not yet known if the bill will be passed, it is probable that the bill will be passed. The High Cliff Park is a beautiful park and it is a great pleasure to see it. The bill will probably be the first visit. The bill will probably be the first visit. The bill will probably be the first visit.

HIGH SCHOOL FIVE CLOSES HOME CARD WITH SHAWANO TEAM

Orange and Black Players Meet Shawano Tonight in Second Game

Kaukauna — Coach Elmer Ott's Orange and Black high school basketball team will play its last home game at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening when it meets Shawano high school in a Northeastern Wisconsin interscholastic league game. Shawano has a team of tall, rangy men who have a number of games this season.

Kaukauna will have its last chance to earn a victory on its own court, but the Shawanos are confident of a win because of the fact that they have already defeated the Kawmen. The local team has only one win to its credit so far this season.

The team is practicing daily and is ready to make the Red and White team work for every basket. The men are all physically fit with the exception of Miller, who is under doctor's care. The Shawano coach Ott will start practice for the basketball tournament at Menasha early in March. Kaukauna will be a competitor in the tournament by virtue of its win over Oconto Falls a week ago.

The starting lineup for Kaukauna will be Landman at center, K. Farwell and R. Farwell at the forward posts, and Sanger and Main at guards. Townsend, Nicholson, Schmidt, Dix and Grogan probably will see action.

A free throwing contest will be held after the first half of the game. Five students are entered, Hanson, Ferguson, Albert, Haass and Rabi-deau. Each entrant will receive 50 tries and the winner will be awarded a second free throwing championship.

The Junior basketball championship of the city will be decided in a preliminary game at 7 o'clock between the Holy Cross parochial school and the St. Mary parochial school. The Holy Cross team will enter the fracas a slight favorite.

BASKETBALL SQUAD IS PLANNING TOURNAMENT

Kaukauna — The A section of Kaukauna high school basketball squad will stage a basketball tournament after the scheduled games of the season are played, according to Coach Elmer Ott. The section will be divided into the "north" and "south" sides. The north side will be captained by Jack VanLieshout and coached by Karl Farwell. The south side will be captained by D. Dix and will be coached by Marvin Miller.

APPLETON DEFEATS ROYAL VOLLEYBALLERS

Kaukauna — Appleton won five sets from the Royal Volleyball team in a Fox River Valley Volleyball league game in the high school auditorium Monday evening. Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, cures children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

Badger Cagers Come From Behind To Beat Purdue

OVERCOME 5 POINT LEAD AND ROMP TO 27 AND 24 VICTORY

"Stretch" Murphy Is Held To Two Baskets and Two Free Throws

MADISON (AP)—Wisconsin's basketball giants are riding the crest of the Western conference wave, virtually assured of at least a tie for the title, as a result of their spectacular 27-24 victory over Purdue here Monday night.

As a dramatic finale in the ancient annals, which has seen Badger basketball fives play since the games inception here more than a quarter century ago, Wisconsin came from the short end of a 13-3 halftime score to triumph in a whirlwind finish. Only the weak Chicago five, scheduled to play here March 9 will appear in the present gymnasium. The new field house, seating 12,000 spectators is to be ready for play next season.

Wisconsin's victory leaves the Badgers to overcome only Chicago to win a claim in the title, while if they drop the second place Michigan Wolverines, who are the only victors over Wisconsin this year and continued as runners up by virtue of their 23-19 victory over Minnesota Monday night, the Badgers will have a clear title regardless of the outcome of the Maroon tilt.

After a mediocre first half, which saw rugged Wisconsin defensive and offensive play, the Badger steamroller, featuring Captain Tenhopen and Foster, got under way to gain a 21-13 lead in ten minutes of play. Wilbur Cummings, Purdue captain and forward, was injured in the first minute of play in the second period, and Fred Welch's weakness allowed the Badgers to knock the score at 23 each, and then pull away before Cummings could steady his teammates.

Little Carl Mathusen proved again he is Wisconsin's spark plug for until he was sent into the fray, with three minutes left of the first half, the Central machine, which had mowed eight opponents down in as many games, refused to function.

"Mud" Foster not only proved a scoring star with nine points, but held the great "Stretch" Murphy to a single free throw in 23 minutes of play. Before that, "Stretch" Kowalczyk, who effectively bottled the former Marion, Ind. find in the Wisconsin victory at LaFayette, Jan. 21, had held Murphy to a field goal and a free toss.

Purdue took the lead when Cummings made a free throw after Tenhopen had fouled him and then the Badgermaker ran the advantage to three points on Murphy's only field goal of the game. Kowalczyk broke the scoring ice for Wisconsin with a long field goal, but Schnaier retaliated from the center of the floor to give his team a five to two lead in the first four minutes of play.

Boots counted for Purdue, while Foster made a goal and free throw with a free throw and Foster with a goal raised Wisconsin's total to 8 at half time while Purdue picked up six points on two baskets and free throws by Cummings and Murphy.

Wisconsin rushed the second half and raised the score to 21 to 13 on a field goal by Ellerman, three by Tenhopen, two by Foster and a free throw by Chmielewski. The attack was dazzling and Purdue was helpless.

Miller counted twice and Tenhopen made a field goal in the last ten minutes while the Boilermakers were closing with 11 points, seven of which came in the last seven minutes on erratic stalling by Wisconsin.

Dr. W. E. Meanwell, Wisconsin's coach, was perhaps the most excited spectator. The little doctor could be seen in his left above floor covering his eyes when the rangy Murphy had the ball and smiling when the Wisconsin daddies long legs gained possession. He witnessed the game in leather sleeves.

FIVE MAN LEADERS CHANGE AS STATE PIN MEET CLOSES

H. Strutz, Appleton, Rolls to 619 Score in Singles

Sheboygan (AP)—The midnight hours Monday saw the crowning of a new five man champion in the state bowling tournament here.

The last team to send the ball down the alleys, the Milwaukee Sausage Company's team nosed out the Planitons of Milwaukee to win the tourney title. Championships in the other events will be determined before the end of Tuesday. The Sausage team rolled 3045 in games of 1102, 955 and 988. The Planitons were in second with 2016. The Bund-Upmeyer's of Milwaukee with 3007 were third; Kiel Tables of Kiel with 2991 fourth and Merrick Clothiers of Green Bay, fifth with 2979.

J. Krunch and M. Hayden of Oshkosh rolled into a tie with C. Elevator and J. Peterson of Kenosha, for sixth place in the two men event with a score of 1256.

Krumch amassed the impressive total of 690 in his three games while Hayden had 568.

M. Klemmer and H. Whitney of Oshkosh rolled second high in the day's competition, totaling 1265.

Klemmer rolled 620 of this and Whitney 606. G. Gustafson and A. Naber of Green Bay with scores of 619 and 611, respectively, also found a good place among the money bowlers, with 1230 as their combined total.

G. Bertrand of Green Bay stood high Monday in the individual bowling with a score of 625 in games of 220, 216 and 202. He was followed by Barklar of Green Bay, who rolled games of 212, 200 and 225 for 637. P. Sulewski of Milwaukee with 631, A. Sessert of Milwaukee with 625, H. Strutz of Appleton with 619 and W. Vanbeck of Green Bay with 615.

Norman Schmidt Autos were the high bowlers in the five men on the first evening shift with 2745 but they did not disturb the leaders Monday evening.

Stanford started its baseball schedule late in January. Only three veterans were available for the team, two outfielders and an infielder.

Enroute from Chicago to the Pacific Coast—President Ernest Barnard, of the American league, feels sure that the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics are to have a race of it between them this season. In that prediction he finds hearty concurrence.

Likewise, he thinks that the St. Louis Browns are a deviling team of youngsters who may upset the pork and beans on both sides of the table. He is inclined to believe that the young blood in the Washington team, the change in management in the Detroit team, the younger blood in the Cleveland team, the uncertainty in the Chicago team, which only needs a little encouragement to raise Ned, are all factors of so much importance in the coming race that those who walk on slummers place better mark their "is" and "are", or they will fail.

THE HARDEST WORKING HEAVYWEIGHT

Young Stribling's Life Story

By Milton K. Wallace

BY MILTON K. WALLACE
YOUNG STRIBLING has displayed anger but a few times either in or out of the ring. On one of these occasions it was not good for one, Martin Burke and Mr. Burke was not to blame. Gene Tunney was the cause of it all. Stribling had never held very high esteem for Tunney since the Miami episode in 1925 and particularly did not care for the champion's efforts to be highbrow.

The Georgia Peach was matched with Martin Burke several months ago down in Miami. Gene Tunney, Tex Richard and a goodly number of other sporting notables were at the ringside and Tunney, whose dislike for the Georgian was mutual, had freely predicted that Burke would beat Stribling. This same New Orleans heavy had fought Tunney on two separate occasions, forcing him to get the limit in order to earn the decision.

Before the bout Tunney was introduced from the ring and after the introduction, walked over to Burke's corner where he chatted with the speckled Louisiana brawler for several moments. He then turned and with one foot out of the ropes, merely touched Stribling's glove and said, "How are you, Stribling?"

This insult was too much for the Macon youngster. He glowered savagely at the champion without replying and when the bell sounded, he tore into Tunney's friend and smashed him with a vicious right that knocked Burke cold.

Bill hurriedly left the ring and made his way to Tunney, who occupied a seat in the first ringside row. "How did you like that?" he demanded.

Stribling never brags about anything and whether or not he told Tunney "I'll do you the same way if I ever get you in the ring," will probably never be known. But that is what one of Stribling's close friends who was in his corner that night, said the Macon boy told the heavyweight king.

Several weeks before the Stribling-Squires bout, the Georgia Cracker was matched with a local favorite at Greensboro, N. C. And Warren, the collegiate heavy, about whom much is heard, lives in North Carolina and Carolinians think Warren will be the next champion. When Stribling was introduced from the ring as "the next heavyweight champion of the world," he was met with boos and hisses. The place where the bout was held was packed and jammed.

"Listen here, they're booing us," Pa whispered to him. "These people don't want to see a fight. Give him the works right from the start."

The bell rang, Stribling bolted from his corner and brought his right crashing flush on his opponent's jaw.

"Doo, yourself!" said Stribling to the crowd. Ten minutes later his opponent was sufficiently aroused to wonder if he had been struck by a freight train.

It seems that Stribling has been jinxed by something in nearly every important battle he has ever engaged in. Old Lady Hard Luck seems to have singled him out as her special child of misfortune. When nothing is at stake the Georgia Cracker looks like a champion, but when the big chance comes along, something nearly always happens.

Although it has never been published before, Stribling was a sick man when he fought Mike McTigue at Columbus, Ga. He was ill when he fought Berlenbach the last time; he had a fractured vertebrae in his neck when he fought Loughran and lost; and although he recently defeated Johnny Squires, the South African heavyweight in New York, he sprained a ligament in his arm three days before the bout.

Stribling has developed a punch in the last two years. He always had a fair wallop with either hand, but his ideas about the grand old game of glove and take have undergone radical changes. Once he thought the fans liked clever, scientific boxing, and he developed into one of the best boxers in the game. He was good enough to outbox the master, Mike McTigue, on two occasions, and that is something few others in Mike's class have done.

But the time came when he realized he needed a crushing blow that would fell his opponents, if he was to become a champion.

Dr. Carl Studer, a chiropractor from Texas, was interested in the Macon brawler, and assured Pa that he could teach his son to hit. Although "Doo" Studer's system didn't exactly make a hit with the Striblings, he did teach Young Stribling to sock, and the highly touted "newly discovered punch" dates back to the time when the stocky, red-faced German superintended Stribling's workouts in the gym and told him how to get his body behind his punches.

The Georgian is not the boxer he was two years ago, but he carries a wallop that will sting the toughest of them. He is powerfully fast for a big man, can assimilate punishment, and is still good enough to out-box most of the heavies. This is a dangerous combination that may yet result in the hopes of Pa Stribling being fulfilled—for his boy Bill to be a real world's champion.

VIKINGS TO MEET CARROLL PIONEERS IN WAUKESHA GYM

Denneymen Chalked Up Victory Over Pioneers Here in First Game

COACH A. C. Denney and his Lawrence college Vikings will meet Carroll college Pioneers at Waukesha, Tuesday evening in the last of the 1929 season's games between the two schools. The Vikes defeated Carroll in armory G several weeks ago by a three point margin.

The Vikes feel pretty good over their showing against Carleton college here last Friday and indicate they're good enough to cop a victory from the Pioneers. The team which will take the floor Tuesday is not the same one that triumphed over Carroll up here for Schneller, Pierce and Stenberg are missing.

However, the Vikes seem to have found a scoring combination now that Biggers and Rasmussen have gotten underway. The two youngsters contrived to count nine baskets against Carleton and should have no trouble against Carroll.

Ken Laird will be Coach Denney's choice for center and as long as he keeps Kempthorne of Carroll away from the basket no one will ask more. Laird played against the big fellow a few minutes when Carroll was here and performed in a creditable manner.

St. Mitchell and Captain Jerry Slavic will hold down the guard positions with Fischel as a reserve guard. The defensive work of the Vikings has been all that could be asked in the last couple weeks.

Carroll has had a comparatively touch going this season and Coach Armstrong has elected to shake up the team whenever he thought he could improve it. However, Kempthorne at center and Bizer at guard will cause plenty of trouble if allowed to run at large. Bizer in particular, because of his size, dashes through the entire defense of opposing teams to toss his shots which seldom miss the hoop.

BADGERS WOLVES, AFTER BIG 10 FLAG

Wisconsin Meets Chicago, Michigan on Remaining Schedule

CHICAGO (AP)—The scramble for the conference basketball championship had narrowed down to a Wisconsin-Michigan affair today. The championship may be settled next Monday when Wisconsin invades Ann Arbor for Michigan's final game. Wisconsin has the edge in that it can drop the game and still tie for the title as only the weak Chicago team remains on the schedule—a game that should be an easy victory for the pace setting Madison outfit.

But to be in running when the two leading teams meet Monday, Michigan must first dispose of the troublesome Ohio State quintet at Columbus Saturday night.

Michigan failed to display the style of play that has carried it to a position as a title contender but managed to down Minnesota 23 to 19. Only accurate free-throw shooting gave Michigan its victory.

Ohio State demonstrated that it is still a powerful quintet, crushing whatever hopes Iowa had of remaining high in the standings, 42 to 23. The victory gave Ohio State undisputed possession of fourth place with six victories and four defeats.

Iowa, which had only one field goal in the first half, which ended 15 to 8, the first half, which ended 15 to 8, Northwestern made it two straight over the Indiana eye, winning 23 to 26 in an overtime period.

NEW YORK RANGERS PLAY OTTAWA SIX

American Team Holds to Top by Mere One Point Margin

NEW YORK (AP)—With the worst defeat of the season barely behind them, the champions of the hockey world, the New York Rangers, still are in the danger zone. Holding their slim margin of one point, the Rangers meet the feisty and fast Ottawa Senators Tuesday night, while the Boston Bruins, who are needing them for the lead, tackle the Montreal Maroons.

Ottawa took a new lease on life when it was finally decided that the franchise would remain in the Canadian capital for another year and that the Senators would play in the city.

Politically the finest thing that Yale has ever done was to agree to come to Athens for the dedication of the University of Georgia stadium on Oct. 12 next.

The south is very sensitive, very quick to appreciate a gallant gesture and the willingness of Yale, without any urging, to depart from time-honored policy and go far afield for a football game is appreciated not only in Athens but throughout Georgia and the south. It is recalled here that the first resident of the University of Georgia—back in 1802—was a Yale man and that six of the original trustees owned the New Haven institution as their alma mater.

Beautifully designed, a system of planning now in progress under the direction of the agricultural school will make Sanford field the most beautiful amphitheatre in the country and the game against Yale next October will be by all odds the greatest for the coach of her forward wall and it marks, the writer believes, the best south.

Valley City Keglers Fail At State Pin Meet

Sheboygan — J. Behnke, Jr., and T. Sauer, Jr. of Appleton collected 1167 in the doubles of the state bowling tournament here Monday. Sauer was going strong in his first two games with 213 and 215 but picked some bad ones in the third, preventing him from going into the 600 class. His total was 596. J. Strutz of Appleton rolled 619 in the singles hitting the impressive mark of 246 in his middle game after stalling with 197. He wound up with 176.

Marquette Wins Over Drake in Overtime
Des Moines (AP)—Marquette University basketball team won a gripping double overtime game from Drake 37 to 36 here Sunday night. The local failed to score in the first eleven minutes, while Marquette piled up 10 points. At the half the visitors led 16 to 13. Early in the second period, Drake tied at 16 all, lost the tie immediately, but forged ahead at 22-21. Andrew turned loose, and gave Marquette a 25 to 2

GOOD ALFALFA SEED AVAILABLE THIS YEAR, SAYS U. W. MAN

BUY CERTIFIED PRODUCT TO BE SURE OF RESULT

Severe Winters in Wisconsin
Are Difficult Test for Alfalfa

BY L. F. GRABER AND A. L.
STONE

Good supplies of adaptable alfalfa seed are available to Wisconsin farmers for 1929. The leading seedsmen of this state handle the U. S. Verified Common alfalfa from Montana and South Dakota, the state certified Montana Common and the officially sealed and certified Grimm alfalfa from these and other states in the West. This means much in the way of securing dependable seed. The verification of common alfalfa is a service rendered by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Through a system of records the seed is traced from the grower to the seller and is so labeled under government regulations that the seller may be assured of the origin of the seed. When you consider that there is nearly 40 per cent of the total crop of alfalfa seed in this country was produced in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and California, the value of verified seed is emphasized. The common strains of alfalfa from these southwestern states have proven to be undesirable for Wisconsin conditions in trial tests. Perhaps, nowhere in the Union are the winters more severe with reference to clover and alfalfa than in Wisconsin. We need dependable sources of hardy alfalfa seed. The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture certifies to the origin of common alfalfa seed from Montana and such seed is tagged accordingly.

One of the most progressive steps of the seed industry in the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture was that taken two years ago with reference to Grimm alfalfa. At the suggestion of the seedsmen during their conference at Madison in 1928 a regulation was adopted prohibiting the sale in Wisconsin of Grimm alfalfa seed in packages of 80 pounds or more unless the seed is sealed and which had been officially sealed and certified by recognized officials of the states in which the seed was grown.

MUST SUPPLY RECORDS

A word about official certification. The grower in the western states must supply records to the officials which will trace the origin of the seed back to the old original Grimm grown on the Grimm farm at Carver County, Minnesota.

Each field is placed in an inspector and examinations made as to the few varietal characteristics of the Grimm which would tend to help in determining its true name. The variety of the growers is considered, and also the conditions on each farm with reference to accidental crossing and mixing of the common with Grimm. In some states the regulation is so strict that the inspector that huller be used to hull Grimm alfalfa which has not hulled any other kind. An inspector is on the job at the time the seed is hulled. He seals the sacks at the time the seed is cleaned. He unseals them, cleans the seed and reseals the sack finally before the seed goes on to the market. All of these precautions are taken before the seed is tagged in order to give assurance that the seed is as represented on the certification tag.

Alfalfa seed as well as clover seed is very high in price this year. The crop in the U. S. was about one-third less last fall than the year previous. Unfortunately only a small crop was produced in Ontario, Canada, and because we have received large quantities of a very desirable type of alfalfa. All of these circumstances have limited the supply and increased the price. This is unfortunate. Last winter we had a very unfavorable season and nearly 90,000 acres of alfalfa were killed out.

BUY GOOD SEED

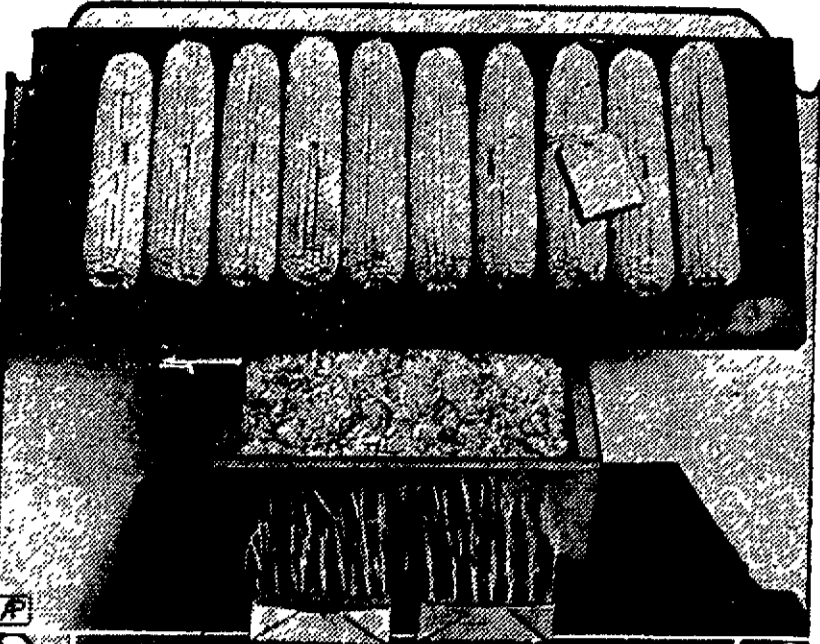

The problem which confronts us now is whether to buy high priced alfalfa seed and raise our own protein feed or ultimately be required to buy high priced concentrates. Of the two the latter in my opinion is much more costly. To those who have land with plenty of lime in it—soil that will grow alfalfa readily, sufficient alfalfa should be sown to provide for feed requirements in spite of the high price of the seed. Those who have land which is somewhat sour—that which needs lime and has not received it—are the ones who have good reason to hesitate on the buying of high priced alfalfa seed. Their problem is first to buy the lime, then buying the alfalfa seed is justified even at present figures.

The time has come when we must be willing to spend more money for soil treatment such as lime and phosphate, for inoculation and even for high priced clover and alfalfa seed, if we are to curtail the heavy drain of the feed bill on dairy farm profits. I do not say this in any attempt to justify high prices for legume seeds. High prices occur when supplies are limited. We are in a condition, not a theory. It is my opinion that the condition is not sufficiently serious to warrant curtailment in the acreage of our greatest feed producing crop—alfalfa.

MISS HUFFMAN VISITS HOME ECONOMIC GROUPS

Miss Edna Huffman is in the county this week visiting Home Economic groups and starting 1929 work in cooking and allied subjects. After the new county agent takes up his work, March 15, a leader for the Home Economic groups will be selected. Before the election, however, Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, County Agent, will arrive in Appleton for a conference with the committee on agriculture of the board of supervisors, and officers of the Home Economic groups. In a few weeks at the most, the Home Economic groups will be working together with the same quality of enthusiasm and success they exhibited last year, in hearty response to the suggestions of Miss Huffman.

Corn 90 Per Cent Productive

Typical 10 ears, shelled corn, and seedlings required in Missouri certified seed contest.

Columbia, Mo. —(P)—Prize-winning corn in the certified seed class at the annual show of the Missouri Corn Growers' association must be at least 90 per cent productive.

In the new class exhibitors are required to enter 10 ears, a peck of shelled corn, and a hundred seeds—ninety of which must sprout to qualify the contestant.

NEAUFTELL CHEESE IS MADE AT BLACK CREEK

W. F. WINSEY

Black Creek — Two years ago the Black Creek Cooperative Creamery began manufacturing from skim milk Neauftell cheese, which is similar to cottage cheese but differs in some respects. Cottage cheese in the making is subjected to a temperature of 100 degrees while Neauftell cheese is not heated at all but is renneted in its manufacture.

In the manufacture of Neauftell cheese, the skim milk is poured into the vat at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and two ounces of rennet in water is stirred in the skim milk. The skim milk remains in the vat to set until 6 o'clock the morning following. The cheese is then put into sugar sacks to drain and afterward packed in wooden tubs holding 70 pounds each.

The product is then shipped to a Fond du Lac dealer who now has 20 carloads stored in Chicago. There is a strong demand for this kind of cheese for table purposes for making pies in bakeries.

The local creamery is the only one in the section of the state that is using the by-products of the dairy in the manufacture of Neauftell cheese.

1,518,858 POUNDS MILK HANDLED IN ONE YEAR

The White Lily cheese factory handled 1,518,858 pounds of milk during the period from Dec. 17, 1927, to Dec. 15, 1928, according to the annual report submitted recently at the annual meeting. Officers elected at this time were M. G. Colson, clerk and Samuel Strong, treasurer. The proprietor is Anton Honish.

Exactly 54,473.03 pounds of butterfat was included in the milk delivered at the factory. There were 155,115 pounds of cheese sold and receipts from this product totaled $32,733.68. When cream brought in $911.29.

Other records turned in with the report were as follows: Net amount to patrons, $30,425.32; paid for making cheese, $3,410.31; average price milk per 100 pounds, $2; average price butterfat, $55.85; average price cheese, $22.57; number of pounds of milk to pounds of cheese, $10.46; average test, 3.53 per cent; average pounds of cheese to 100 pounds of milk, 9.56; over-run for year, 10 per cent.

POSSIBLE MEAT SHORTAGE SAVED BY PORK SUPPLY

Total Production in 1928
Was One-half of 1 Per Cent Larger Than in '27

Abundance of pork averted a possible meat shortage in the United States during 1928. In other respects the developments of the year were similar to those of the preceding year, namely, a continued upswing in hog and lamb slaughter and a continued downswing in the beef supply. All these tendencies, however, says a report by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, were more pronounced in 1928. For example, estimated production of pork increased 352 million pounds in 1927 and 354 million pounds more in 1928. Lamb and mutton production increased but 2 million pounds in 1927 against 26 million pounds in 1928. While beef slaughter fell off 632 million pounds in 1927, it further decreased 744 million pounds in 1928.

The total of 16,953 million pounds of dressed meat, not including lard, estimated to have been produced in 1928 is composed of 6,082 million pounds of beef, 814 million pounds of veal, 671 million pounds of lamb and mutton, 3,387 million pounds of pork, and 1 million pounds of goat meat. Of this total production 66.75 per cent was federally inspected. The remainder included the farm kill and the commercial slaughter not Government inspected. Some of the latter is inspected by State and local authorities, but the quantity so inspected is not known.

The total meat production in 1928 was 83 million pounds more than that of the preceding year, but that increase was not sufficient to maintain the per capita consumption at the 1927 level.

The per capita consumption for 1927 was 139.7 pounds and for 1928 exactly 138 pounds. The latter is composed of 51.7 pounds beef, 6.8 pounds veal, 5.6 pounds lamb and mutton, and 73.9 pounds pork. The per capita totals have been falling steadily for several years. With the population increasing at the rate of almost a million and a half annually, an increase of about 200 million pounds of meat each year is necessary to hold the per capita at the present level. Under normal conditions the United States still has a large exportable surplus of pork and lamb, but there has been no such surplus of beef or mutton for a long period.

I view of the higher prices of beef, some increase in importations of beef during 1928 was to be expected. The total import of 121 million pounds of dressed beef, however, is but 1 pound per capita of the population. Exports of pork (934 million pounds) were slightly larger than those of 1927, but much below the average of either pre-war or post-war years. Exports of lamb (801 million pounds) increased 11.7 per cent.

Detailed statistics are given in a mimeographed pamphlet entitled "Meat Production and Consumption in United States, 1900-1928," compiled in the Bureau of Animal Industry from the records of that bureau

Velvet Barley Without Beards Interests Farmers

BY W. F. WINSEY

Wisconsin farmers who attended the recent grain show at the College of Agriculture, Madison, exhibited intense interest in the smooth awn, velvet barley recently developed in this state through seed specialists of the college of agriculture, and the Wisconsin Experiment association, in quantities large enough to fill at least the first orders for seed.

Through curiosity and interest, the awns were stripped from the barley of a number of sheaves on exhibition at the grain show, seed from the heads was pocketed, a man at a desk was kept busy answering questions about the new velvet barley, and each new member of the experiment association, selected a bushel of the smooth awn barley in preference to any other grain as his membership premium.

For the past 50 years, the thought of cutting, binding, shocking, stacking and threshing barley has caused spasmodic shrugging of shoulders, twitching of skin and wry faces, and the actual experience left the skin irritated, inflamed and often lacerated.

CHEESE MEN NAME 2 NEW DIRECTORS

Annual Meeting of Hickory Grove Association Held at Forest Junction

Forest Junction—Two new members recently were elected on the board of directors, by the Hickory Grove Cooperative Cheese Producers' association at its annual meeting here. They are Arthur Schnell and Elmer Leifer. Schnell also succeeds Vernon Kundiger, operator of the factory, as secretary-treasurer of the association.

Other directors reelected are Charles Schaefer, who has been president of the organization; Edward J. Franke, vice president; and Levi Broehm.

The factory received 1,378,005 pounds of milk in 1928, from which an output of 129,376.75 pounds of cheese was disposed of through the National Cheese Producers' federation, with which the factory is affiliated. The average test, as shown by the annual report, was 3.51, the total pounds of butter fat being 48,429.1. The average price paid for 100 pounds of milk for cheese and whey cream was $1.933.

President Schaefer, who had officially represented the association at the annual National federation meeting at Plymouth last week, briefly reviewed the events of that gathering to his constituency at the meeting Thursday afternoon; and in conformity to the action of the federation, a petition to the congressional representatives was drawn up requesting a higher tariff for cheese and dairy products.

ated. Barley beards creeping in the perspiration under clothing on the skin is one of the severest tests that can be applied to good nature.

With all the annoyance of handling barley, farmers have persisted in raising the crop and will increase their acreages for the reason that it is the equal of corn as a feed for dairy cattle and hogs, that it requires less work in raising and harvesting than corn, and it is ready for fattening hogs for the early market several months in advance of corn.

The popularity of barley as a feed, past experiences with barley beards, and the announcement of a new kind of barley with smooth awns, drew the crowds to the barley section of the grain show.

WICKERT GROWS BRAND

Walter H. Wickert is one of the first growers of velvet barley in this section. He says that it handles as easily as oats or wheat and yields four or five bushels more per acre than the common kinds. He has a 350 bushel surplus of this barley on hand.

Clad in a jacket and other protective clothing, he and his men used to shock bearded barley with a fork and set in close touch with the bundles as rarely as possible. They now handle the new barley handled, the same as bundles of any other kinds of grain, and suffer no inconveniences whatever. While needing no outside inducement from any source, Mr. Wickert's men make him repeat promises that he will not go back to bearded barley.

Earlier when Mr. Wickert can not supply with seed barley would do well to write for circulars issued by the Wisconsin Experiment association, college of agriculture, or write H. R. Lathrop, county agent, Kewaunee, or B. F. Rusy, county agent Door county. In both of these counties are considerable quantities of certified seed, raised by local farmers.

In purchasing the seed of smooth awned barley, care should be taken to the end that beardless barley is not supplied instead of the smooth awned kind. The beardless type of barley has been tried in Wisconsin and has been found not equal to the smooth awned kind.

PLANTS ARE SHOWING DISEASE RESISTANCE

Urbana, Ill. —(P)—Tomato wilt, a soil-borne disease, is losing the battle to Illinois growers and plant pathologists who have developed disease-resisting strains. Some success has been seen in the breeding of wilt-resistant watermelons, and a peach strain resistant to the destructive bacterial spot.

Illinois has several hundred different crop plants, each with from one to 20 diseases attacking it. The great problem is to keep strains pure and resistant after they have been obtained.

Resistant types are expected to eliminate in many cases the expensive use of sprays and other physical treatments. As many as 15 spray applications a season are used on apples in southern Illinois.

SEEDSMEN START BATTLE TO STOP SPREAD OF SMUT

Madison—Wisconsin seed and grain growers this week announced a plan to stop the spread of the smut disease among pedigreed oats and wheat. The requirements for certifying and registering oats and wheat have been stiffened, requiring the grain to come from seed which has been treated for smut. Furthermore the crop must not reveal on field inspection more than a trace of smut.

The new requirements were explained in a news letter sent to all the members of the Wisconsin Experiment association.

Officials of the association feel that the quality of Wisconsin grains will be improved by the new rule. The cost of treating seed is insignificant. For a few cents, a grower can insure an acre of grain against the ravages of the disease. Smut is carried by the seed, and during the growing season spreads from plant to plant. The disease reduces crop yields, causing a loss of millions of dollars to farmers throughout the country.

89 INDUSTRIES TOP ONE MILLION MARK 35 CLASSED LOWER

Three Industries Exceed Hundred Million, State Association Finds

Of the 124 industries enumerated by the Census in Wisconsin's industrial family, 89 exceed one million dollars in value of products and 35 range less than one million dollars. In addition to the last mentioned 35 industries, it is to be expected that most of those included in the "all other industries" group also fall below one million dollars in value of products. Wisconsin has three industries that exceed the hundred million mark, compared to 86 industries that range between one million and one hundred million dollars in value of products. Eight of these 86 industries exceed fifty million dollars, so it readily may be seen that Wisconsin's greatest numerical strength industrially lies in the 73 industries that are neither large nor small but medium sized. Nine of the 124 Wisconsin industries separately enumerated in the Census may be regarded as service industries that sell largely or entirely to a local market. In this class are bread and bakery products, printing and publishing, gas for cooking, railroad repair shops, ice cream, tents and awnings, manufactured ice, stereotyping and engraving. Of the 115 remaining industries, as regard the local or home market as only a part, although an important part, of the nation-wide market. Here similar products from other states are met in keen competition by the products of 92 per cent of the industries of the Badger State. Without detracting from the importance of the 8 per cent of Wisconsin's industries

FEWER HOGS, MORE SHEEP AVAILABLE, SURVEY INDICATES

Cattle Number About Same as Last Year, Nation's Livestock Reports

The annual inventory of the Nation's livestock indicates fewer hogs on hand than last year, more sheep and about the same number of cattle.

The number of horses continues to decline as it has for several years. It is now at its lowest in 40 years and judging by the number of colts born in 1928 will continue to decline. Horse prices are advancing. This appears to be an excellent time for many farmers to replace old worn-out horses with young animals.

The number of dairy cows is reported as about the same as a year ago but yearling heifers and heifer calves showed some increase in numbers.

The outlook for the swine industry in 1929 is favorable. The 1928 market supply of hogs is expected to be considerably smaller than that of 1928.

Some improvement in the foreign demand for American pork products is indicated and no material change in domestic demand is anticipated. Hog prices during 1929 are expected to average considerably higher than in 1928.

The combined spring and fall pig crop of 1929 as indicated by the pig surveys was about 5 per cent smaller for the Corn Belt than the crop of 1927. The distribution of the 1928 crop over the Corn Belt States was in better relation to corn supplies than that of the 1927 crop.

Information as to hog supplies for the marketing year, November 1928 to October 1929 indicates a slaughter of from 23,000,000 to 45,000,000 head which compares with a slaughter of 48,000,000 for the crop year 1927-28.

The immediate outlook for the cattle industry continues favorable, with prices about at the peak of the cycle. Further reduction in market supplies in 1929 is indicated, but the decrease probably will not be as great as that of 1928. Supplies of grain-finished cattle during the first half of 1929 will probably equal or exceed those in the first half of last year. Any increase in such cattle, however, is likely to be offset by decreased supplies of other kinds of cattle. In the past situations like the one which now prevails have been followed by increased production and reduced prices. This, therefore, does not appear to be a favorable time for new producers to enter the industry. Those already in may profit by moderate expansion during the next two or three years even though prices go somewhat lower.

The number of milch cows on the farms has been decreasing since 1924. There are one-half million fewer dairy cows today than there were in 1925.

The Inaugural Pageant

FROM WASHINGTON TO HOOVER

BENJAMIN HARRISON, 1889-'93
By Alexander H. George
(Associated Press Feature Writer)
Washington —(AP)—To the cheers of thousands who stood in pools of water under dripping red, white and blue umbrellas, Gen. Benjamin Harrison, grandson of President William Henry Harrison, rode from the White House to the Capitol March 4, 1889, one of the worst inauguration days in history.

Decorations were sudden and rain-streaked men wrung the water out of their coats and many a feminine bang, slung especially for the inauguration, was ruined. President-elect Harrison sat with President Cleveland and Senators Hoar and Cockerell in an open carriage drawn by two seal brown and two sorrel horses. General Harrison "smiled behind his beard" as Senator Hoar struggled to raise his umbrella, the ring sliding to the top and the umbrella collapsing. At the Capitol, General Harrison, disregarding the advice of his associates, insisted on going out on the open portico to deliver his inaugural address to the multitude which had stood for hours in the rain to see the ceremony. One of the most picturesque figures in the parade was saloonkeepers were boasting the "best lager beer in America." Bob Funkerton returned home from the capital with another feather in his cap, claiming a large share of the credit for keeping the city clean of thieves during the inauguration.

The men's fashion editor of the New York World thus described the "spring style trend": "It is evident that Ascot scarfs have come to stay. A new shade in spring durbies is smoke color—it is an exceedingly soft and delicate tint. In vests, the notched collar is still the favorite. The dead or unpolished finish in collars is considered the proper caper. Highly glossed linen is looked upon as vulgar.

"Some startling effects are to be seen among the recent importations of hosiery, a pronounced design being bottle green flecked with golden butterflies. As an accompaniment to flannel shirts which will be the craze next summer, four-in-hand flannel scarfs are being manufactured."

President Harrison was of a reserved nature and his political enemies said he was cold, proud and austere. He was essentially simple in his tastes and delighted in playing with his children and grandchildren after methodically disposing of the day's executive routine.

He gave a birthday party at the White House March 16, 1891, on the fourth anniversary of his grandson, Benjamin Harrison McKee. A contemporary account says: "The guests assembled in the Blue room to be led by the President and his grandson to the dining room where at a round table were 15 high chairs. The centerpiece was a plat of ferns on which were two flags crossed, while at each plate were rush baskets of bonbons, the handles formed of tri-colored ribbons.

"About the table were big dishes of beaten biscuits, especially made for the occasion in the form of little chicks with outspread wings. The menu included bouillon, cakes and cream. The marine band supplied music. The children were waited on by their mothers and nurses and the ladies of the White House. Then the President led the way to the corridor with his namesake and they all danced the Virginia reel."

As each bid carries 56 alternates the committees will have to decide which of the alternate proposals tract for the proposed addition to the Riverview sanatorium at Combined Locks.

The three committees were designated by the county board at its meeting last week to go ahead with the work. Eight bids have been received and they are being tabulated by Edward Wettengel, consulting architect.

As each bid carries 56 alternates the committees will have to decide which of the alternate proposals they desire to place in the contract for the work.

The estimated cost of the structure, complete, is $225,000. The general contract will probably be let for about $200,000. If the committee is able to complete its work Friday afternoon it is possible that the contract will be let at that time.

Bayard

In the service of the Duke of Savoy, Pierre Bayard distinguished himself by his courage and skill, and gained the affection of everybody by his simple and generous disposition. One day the duke desired to send a magnificent gift to the king of France and it occurred to him that he should send this brave page.

One day when the French king was in the midst of his court, he noticed Pierre and the remarkable horsemanship the young man displayed.

The king applauded and all the court expressed admiration as Pierre put his little horse through thrilling feats.

Pierre grew into a tall, straight, bright-eyed and fearless soldier. He overthrew the bravest of knights, won high honors on the most desperate battlefields and earned a reputation of generosity to fallen foes and chivalry to women. He was soon to receive a great honor from King Francis. (To Be Continued)

SOFFA BUILDING
BURNS DOWN; LOSS
IS SET AT $2,500

Adjoining Structures Threatened by Flames but Firemen Check Advance

New London — A frame building on Water-st., owned by Mose Sofia, was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning, with a total loss of about $2,500. The structure consisted of two rooms, with a shed in the rear, and housed a repair shop and a number of sewing machines.

Clayton Holmes, city night policeman, discovered the blaze at about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, and turned in a fire alarm. Cause of the fire is not known.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Smith, who occupy a flat above the Smith garage, west of the Sofia place, were awakened by Mr. Holmes. The flat was filled with smoke at the time, and the garage building was threatened by the flames.

At the east of the burning structure is the Gherke farm implements store. It caught fire several times, but the blaze was extinguished on each occasion by the firemen.

The interior of the Sofia flat was damaged considerably by water, as the firemen were compelled to drag hose through the dwelling in order to reach the flames. The blaze was not completely extinguished until about 6 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Farmers Crowd Manawa
To See Horse Parade

Special to Post-Crescent
Manawa—Horses had their inning at Manawa, Saturday, when the first annual horse parade and "hook and pull" contest sponsored by the First National bank of this place attracted farmers from all over central Waupaca-co. Some 500 farmers and their families attended the event, most of them coming in sleighs or cutters drawn by horses, and Mainst presented a sight that has had no counterpart in 20 years with its team after team of bays and blacks and rears.

The "hook and pull" contest was so close among three of the six entries that it was decided to split the money three ways. Ed. Trice of Helvetia with a pair of blacks, Herman Breier's bays from Little Wolf, and a smaller team that was almost pure white owned by Joe Baldwin of Symco, divided the purse evenly. The crowd appeared to be with Baldwin's team for it cheered mightily whenever the whites appeared.

Teams were entered in the horse parade, 20 of the finest teams in this part of the state, according to the judges. A. H. Howatt, Smith-Hughes instructor at Waupaca, and James Dance, former Waupaca-co. agricultural agent. First place was awarded to Arthur Patzer with a pair of blacks perfectly matched. Second went to Albert Fenz with a team of chestnuts, and third to Lewis Kerg's big sorrels. All these men live in Union. Teams owned by Mark Doughty of Ogdensburg and Jake Asman of Bear Creek were considered up until the very last.

Manawa high school won its first Central Wisconsin league basketball game of the season, Friday night, by defeating Amherst here 15 to 13. The freshmen squad, undefeated in four years of grade school competition and conquerors of the Appleton junior high school champs last spring, was used against Amherst and came through in great style.

Eastling, forward, and Stebs, guard, were two juniors who played, but Lindow at center, Welch forward, and Vaughan guard, were first year men as was Guerin, forward, who took Eastling's place for a time in the second half. Manawa led 15 to 7 until the last five minutes when three long shots by Amherst brought them to within two points of the black and red cage men just as the whistle blew.

AIR TRAFFIC COPS
MAKE 219 ARRESTS
Washington — (AP) — Air traffic cops have made 219 arrests without a single complaint that the aerial bluecoats were sleeping on their posts.

Fifty inspectors of the department of commerce air regulations division, charged with arresting and prosecuting air traffic violators, have been on the job throughout the country for more than a year.

Sixty-five of the offenders drew fines of $3,000 to $5,000 for their offenses, while 116 were reprimanded. One hundred ninety-five cases have come up for hearing since the division was organized.

Charges included landing in unauthorized sections, low flying over congested areas, stunt flying with passengers aboard, and carrying explosives.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Colson, Lester Boman and Arno Moede were at Appleton Monday.

COLLECTION COVERS
HISTORY OF LIQUOR

Cambridge, Mass. — (AP) — "The History of Liquor" is the title of a collection of books, pamphlets and drawings presented to the library of the Harvard business school by an anonymous donor.

Many phases of the subject are dealt with, from the milk posset recipe of Sir Walter Raleigh down to the making of malt liquors at home. The books range from one "In Praise of Drunkenness" to such tracts as contain the following extract, concerned with moral lessons:

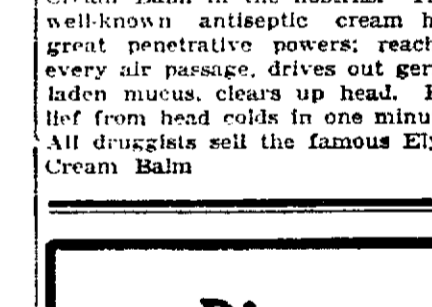

"Seamen their spirits so inflame, Scare able to steer. So thousands perish in the main, Large numbers every year."

One of the outstanding works in the collection is entitled "The Anatomy of Drunkenness" by Dr. Robert Macnish, of Glasgow, wherein it is asserted, are described all the stages of drunkenness from "the delighted stage" when one is neither drunk nor sober, to the eventual possibility of spontaneous combustion.

"This latter phenomenon was of frequent occurrence, according to many other works in the group. Dr. Macnish's treatise indicates that the burning was of two varieties. "Sometimes the body is consumed by an open flame flickering over it—at other times there is merely a smothered heat without any visible flame."

Dr. Macnish was inclined to believe that "brandy kills sooner, rum is next in point of fatality, and after that, whisky and gin."

In 19 winters Frank Collet of Beloit, Kas., has pushed a wheelbarrow 250 miles between the coal bin and furnace at the courthouse.

HORSESHOES
Is a game—also horseshoes are emblems of good luck. And the merchant who uses This Newspaper's Classified Medium to carry his message into the thousands of homes served by the Post-Crescent, finds that good business and good luck is his portion—and that Classified Ads are as effective as a whole store full of good luck horseshoes—and more—that's that.
